

FIRE RIPS HALSEY FOREST

Flames Damage 4-H Structure

... QUARTER OF AREA BURNS

Halsey P—Fire started by lightning early Wednesday afternoon swept over the north timber section of the Halsey National Forest as trees "literally exploded."

The bolt that started the blaze hit prairie land about two miles from the forest to start a grass fire that was driven into the trees by winds of 25 to 35 miles velocity.

So dry was the area that the evergreen trees "literally exploded," National Park Supervisor James Folkestad said.

Shifting Winds
More than 1,000 Forest Service employees volunteer firemen from as far as 50 miles away and ranchers fought the flames. Shifting winds kept them from setting backfires and sudden change of wind sent the flames surging through a 4-H Club camp site in the northeastern forest area, destroying eight cabins. Saved by heavy soaking down were the Forest Service headquarters and five nearby homes near the 4-H camp.

The winds were so strong that an Air Force bomber could not do its job of dropping retardant chemicals.

A late report was that about half of the 33,000 acres of the Bessey Division tree area had been destroyed as the fire raged through the night.

The prairie fire north of the forest was reported out late at night.

Man-Made Forest
The forest is a man-made one in a rolling Sandhills area where trees did not grow of their own accord, but thrived when planted. It was conceived, and named for, Dr. Charles Bessey, a University of Nebraska botany professor. Most of the trees were various varieties of evergreens.

The section burned was in the oldest area of plantings. Observers at the forest said several other small fires were started by the electrical storm but that these were contained.

However the main fire front, blazed through the timber stands, leaped the Middle Loup River, a railroad right of way and Neb. 2 and continued in an easterly direction.

On The Range
Forest Service men said the prairie fire was expected to be contained somewhere in the open range country between Brewster and Dunning to the east.

Some 200 men equipped with bulldozers were scheduled to start patrolling the edges of the burned over forest area early Thursday to stamp out any remaining fire pockets and knock over still smoldering trees.

Heavy smoke lingering over the area made an immediate assessment of the damage impossible. A patrol of the forest area through the night was planned to guard against any new breakout of fire.

Governor Will Inspect Area This Morning

Gov. Frank Morrison late Wednesday ordered an RF84F jet photo reconnaissance aircraft of the Nebraska Air National Guard to photograph and make aerial surveillance of the fire-stricken Nebraska National Forest area.

The governor made plans to fly over the area himself early Thursday morning. Early Thursday he sent an aircraft of the Strategic Air Command out of Omaha to survey the region for informational reasons.

The governor spent Wednesday evening in contact with the Emergency Operations Center in Lincoln and the Air National Guard headquarters.

State agencies which might be affected, including the Game Commission, State Department of Roads and State Safety Patrol, were on alert and had communications facilities in the fire area.

State Fire Marshal Joseph Davis also was involving himself as was the Rural Fire Association, according to Gene Budig, administrative assistant to the governor.

Power Reorganization Bill Axed On 6-0 Vote

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Major public power legislation to reorganize the state into six integrated electric utilities was axed Wednesday on a 6-0 vote of the Legislature's Public Works Committee.

The bill, LB665, signed by Sen. Herb Nore of Genoa, had been supported by Loup River Public Power District and a group of investment banking firms, most of them from Omaha.

The measure had been opposed by Platte Valley Public Power and Irrigation District, Consumers Public Power District, Central Nebraska Public Power and Irrigation District and Nebraska rural electric districts.

First of Four
LB665 is the first of four major power reorganization bills.

—KLANSMAN'S TRIAL— Wilkins Linked To Fatal Gun

Hayneville, Ala. P—A young Alabama Ku Klux Klansman on trial in the night-killer slaying of Mrs. Viola Liuzzo was linked in FBI testimony Wednesday to the murder weapon.

The defendant, Collie Leroy Wilkins Jr., 21, had been described by an FBI informer as using a .38-caliber revolver to shoot Mrs. Liuzzo, a white civil rights demonstrator from Detroit and the mother of five children.

After the March 25 slaying, the FBI recovered the gun described by FBI informer Gary Thomas Rowe Jr. and three spent bullets, taken from the victim's car. These were offered in evidence, and Marion Williams, a bald, bespectacled FBI expert from Washington, testified that he tested the gun and compared the results with the death bullet.

Williams then told the rural jury of white men:

"In my opinion, the three bullets I have just identified were fired from this same gun." One of the bullets hit Mrs. Liuzzo above the left ear.

Earlier, the FBI-planted Klansman, Rowe, 34, denied from the witness stand that he had been bribed to try to frame Wilkins.

"How much money were you offered to come here and testify?" he was asked.

"Absolutely nothing," replied Rowe, a former bartender who said he joined the Klan five years ago at the FBI's behest.

Wilkins Fired Shot
A succession of FBI agents took the stand after Rowe ended his testimony as the star prosecution witness. He testified Tuesday that Wilkins fired the fatal shot from a speeding car occupied by the two of them and two other Klansmen, Eugene Thomas, 42, and William O. Eaton, 41, both facing trial on murder charges.

Rowe had said Thomas, driving the car, passed his gun back to Wilkins at the defendant's request. This was the gun Wilkins fired, Rowe said. FBI agents testified they recovered the gun, which tests showed fired the death shot, from Thomas' home.

Rowe said he also had a gun. Under cross-examination by Klan attorney Matt H. Murphy, the FBI informer said Wilkins and Eaton both emptied their revolvers as their car sped past Mrs. Liuzzo's auto in the darkness on U.S. 80 near here.

Where Was Gun?
Q: Where was the gun you had?
A: In my hand.

Q: It was loaded?
A: Yes, sir.

Q: And you didn't do anything to prevent the firing of a shot, did you?
A: No, sir. I didn't know there was going to be a shot fired until it was fired.

Later, there was this exchange:
Q: How many shots did you fire, Mr. Rowe?
A: Not any.

Rowe was arrested when the other three men were taken into custody the day after the slaying and he was for a time represented by Murphy until charges were dropped.

"Troublemaker"
Murphy tried to depict the informer as a man who was a troublemaker, trying to involve his fellow Klansmen so he could report them to the FBI, violating his Klan secrecy oath.

"I'll ask you if you didn't tell me the FBI had offered to give you 500 acres of land, a farm, in Minnesota and pay you enough to run that firm the rest of your natural life if you would cooperate with them?"

"No, sir," Rowe replied, his hands clasped in his lap. "You told me to put that out and that's how it got out."

Murphy, 6-foot-2, began shouting at Rowe, and Circuit Judge T. Werth Thagard called a brief recess. Afterward, Murphy apologized for his outburst.

Criminal Contempt Charges Dropped

... GOV. JOHNSON, BARNETT

New Orleans P—A federal appeals court dismissed Wednesday criminal contempt charges against Mississippi Gov. Paul Johnson and former Gov. Ross Barnett for their roles in the Meredith-Ole Miss case.

The dismissals were ordered by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals—the same court that instituted the contempt proceedings.

Johnson and Barnett were accused of defying the appeals court by trying to block the entrance of Negro James Meredith into the University of Mississippi in September, 1962. Barnett was governor then and Johnson was lieutenant governor.

During a night of rioting, in which two persons were killed, Meredith was enrolled in the University under protection of federal marshals and U.S. Army troops.

In a divided 4-3 opinion, the appeals court cited "the changed circumstances and conditions" which it said "rendered the further prosecution unnecessary."

The majority opinion added that it was fortunate that further prosecution was not warranted "because there may be no fair alternative course."

The U.S. Supreme Court held a year ago that the two Mississippians were not entitled to a jury trial on the charges.

Own Impartiality Doubtful
Pointing out that Barnett and Johnson previously were adjudged guilty of civil contempt in the Meredith case, the opinion added:

"We are doubtful, to say the least, whether we and the other judges may not have formed a fixed opinion that the defendants are guilty."

The majority opinion said the statutes make no provision for replacement of judges who might thus be disqualified from sitting on a court trying Barnett and Johnson.

In a brief dissenting opinion, Chief Judge Elbert P. Tuttle of Atlanta said, "The public interest requires that a trial be held and that the guilt or innocence of these two respondents be determined."

Both Gov. Johnson and Barnett were out of Jackson, Miss., and could not be reached for comment.

Barnett and Johnson were cited by the court on four counts of interfering with enrollment of Meredith as the first Negro student at Ole Miss.

Tractor Attracts Lots Of Company

Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Western—Lyle Ward's tractor attracts lots of company these spring-tooting days.

Just behind are the gulls—soaring, swooping, fluttering, diving, settling. May's upturned furrows bring them as surely as the insects they seek, and some years there are more.

"Reminds me of when we worked horses, there are so many flying around this spring," reminisced the tractor convert. "Sometimes they get so close they nearly knock a man's hat off."

Clusters of shuffling white against the rich brown earth, the birds take on even more beauty aloft. They wing across fields at will, often swiftly but sometimes with graceful slowness.

Company? Yes, but only for a weekend or so. The next tractor is just too enticing.

U. S. Reveals How Reds Move To Take Over Dominican Revolt

Washington (UPI) — U.S. government sources said Wednesday that Communists moved immediately after the Dominican Republic revolt broke out to set up strong points in Santo Domingo, seize the police station, start acts of terrorism and infiltrate the rebel leadership.

The sources gave extensive information of Communist involvement in the uprising, including the names of 54 alleged Communist conspirators said to have taken part.

Among the names were those of 18 persons who were known or were reliably reported to have been trained in subversive and paramilitary tactics by the Cuban intelligence service or other Cuban organizations, administration sources said.

36 Reliably Identified
They listed 36 others said to have been reliably and clearly identified over the past few years as Communists and Castroite subversives.

They said the information was part of that available to President Johnson when he announced Sunday night that what had begun April 24 as a popular rebellion later had been "seized" by the Communists.

The sources said the full information available to the U.S. government could not be made public for security reasons.

One alleged key figure in the tactical direction of rebel forces was identified as Manuel Gonzalez Gonzales, described as an experienced Spanish Communist Party activist who had been working with the Dominican Communist Party for at least two years.

How Reds Moved In Administration sources gave the following account of how the Communists were said to have moved in on the rebellion.

Within one or two hours after the first coup attempt, members of the Castroite 14th of June Movement were busy in the streets of Santo Domingo calling on the population to come and demonstrate for the return of exiled President Juan Bosch.

Communist leaders seized quantities of arms and ammunition from a camp outside Santo Domingo which had been seized by rebel army officers.

Members of the Partido Socialista Popular Dominicano (PSPD), the country's Moscow-line Communist Party, formed into armed paramilitary teams which fanned out in the downtown and "barrio" (slum) areas, taking control of secondary targets and organizing the inhabitants.

Arms Stored
A party military headquarters was established and arms collected from loyalist police and military forces were stored there. Other strong points were organized.

Leftists took control of Radio Santo Domingo.

On April 25, four Communists on the list of 55 were observed in the Parque Independencia, all carrying weapons. On April 25 three others, responding to a call issued over a rebel radio station, all proceeded to the presidential palace, armed with Molotov cocktails.

At 9 a.m. local time on April 28 the Villa Consulo police station was surrounded by armed civilians. The station was overrun by 9:30. Police caught inside were shot on the spot.

Other Communists were identified as active in the field of political action and propaganda. Three of them took advantage of the sacking of the daily "Prensa Libre" newspaper offices to set up shop for producing leaflets.

Machine Guns Nested
The PSPD established its principal stronghold at the house of a party leader at 56 Calle Esparillat. Crudely fortified machine gun emplacements were set up on the roof of the house. For a time the same house served as principal military headquarters of PSPD forces. The headquarters later was moved, but the house remained an important arsenal.

Others PSPD strong points were set up in downtown buildings. The 14th of June Movement had a strong point on Jose Gabriel Street. A heavily armed force used it as a base.

The country's third Communist Party, the Chinese-oriented Movimiento Popular Dominicano (MPD) set up headquarters and a strong point on Calle Benigno. On April 29 and 30 forces from this base concentrated an attack on the Fortaleza Ozama, an important municipal police headquarters, eventually overthrowing it.

Meeting Joint
Joint meetings of the Partido Revolucionario Dominicano (PRD) the party of Juan Bosch, allegedly were held at the home of a PSPD member, Nicholas Pichado Vicioso, on the morning of April 27. The meetings allegedly were to coordinate military and political action.

Facundo Gomez, said to have taken paramilitary training in Cuba, was identified as a participant in top-level political councils of both the pro-Bosch PRD and later the provisional government.

Three Communist sympathizers were said to have held important posts in the rebel movement which existed before May 1—Alfredo Condo Pausas, attorney general; Luis Romero Lajara Burges, head of security, and Alejandro Lajara, also a security official.

By May 1, U.S. sources said there was little doubt that the PRD civilian leaders of the revolt, with the exception of Bosch who was in Puerto Rico, had at least privately recognized their rebellion had been captured by the extreme left. Most took asylum in foreign embassies.

One of these, Pena Gomez, informed an American embassy official that he considered his movement to have been defeated. He said the Communists had infiltrated into important positions and it was very difficult to stop them.

Pena was one of the chief architects of the original revolt.

House Speedily OKs $700 Million

Washington (AP) — The House responded with alacrity Wednesday to President Johnson's request for speedy approval of a $700 million Viet Nam fighting fund.

The Senate took a little longer. It planned to take up the bill later under an agreement that probably will bring a final vote Thursday.

There were signs of a sharp but short battle developing in the Senate over Johnson's policies in the Dominican Republic as well as in Southeast Asia. A five-hour time limit on debate was negotiated by Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Democratic majority leader.

408-7 Roll Call

House Republicans and Democrats ran up a 408 to 7 roll call vote in support of Johnson's appeal Tuesday for a demonstration that "we will do whatever must be done to ensure the safety of South Viet Nam from aggression."

All seven of the opposing House votes were cast by Democrats: Reps. George E. Brown Jr. of California, Philip Burton of California, John Conyers Jr. of Michigan, John G. Dow of New York, Don Edwards of California, Edith Green of Oregon, and William Fitts Ryan of New York.

Rep. W. E. Brock, R-Tenn., voted against the bill but switched positions after conferring with GOP leaders.

Results

Johnson's request for action at the earliest possible moment brought these results in the House.

A defense subcommittee approved the bill in less than half an hour Tuesday after hearing Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara in closed session.

The House appropriations committee endorsed the subcommittee's action Wednesday morning, also in less than half an hour, and sent the bill to the floor.

The House took it up shortly after convening at noon and passed it by 1 p.m.

The Senate Appropriations Committee also approved the measure unanimously Wednesday morning after hearing McNamara and Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, at a two-hour closed meeting.

Members of the Senate Armed Services committee sat in.

Usual Move Skipped

Both House and Senate skipped the usual procedure of preceding the money bill with a separate measure authorizing the expenditure.

Members on both sides of the aisles rose to applaud House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., when he switched positions after conferring with GOP leaders.

"This resolution is more than an appropriation of $700 million. It is an indication to the whole world that the people are behind our President, not a Democratic or Republican President, but our President."

Speaking for the opposition Brown said peace cannot be gained in Viet Nam by the slaughter of peasants." Rep. Cornelius Gallagher, D-N.J., responded "What we are trying to do is prevent the slaughter of freedom."

'Unseemly' Haste

In the Senate Sens. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., and Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., spoke out against unseemly haste.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., while expressing support for Johnson's request, said it merits "serious and considered debate."

Clark tangled with Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., over the sending of U.S. troops to the Dominican Republic, and asked "Wouldn't it be better to be candid about it and vote for a declaration of war" in Viet Nam?

Most For Viet Nam

McNamara told newsmen most of the $700 million would be used in Viet Nam, with only a small part of it needed for the Dominican Republic operation. He said, "The Navy expansion is just getting underway in the Viet Nam area."

All of the $700 million would be for use in the remaining weeks of the 1963 fiscal year which ends June 30.

The House Appropriations Committee said the additional funds will provide the means for continuing the buildup of modern supplies, equipment and facilities for our forces."

Red Attacks Fall Off

McNamara reported "a definite fall-off in over large-scale Communist attacks in South Viet Nam recently. He placed the decline in attacks by Viet Cong company and battalion-size units at 50 to 60% and said there also has been a drop of about 10% in smaller terror attacks."

McNamara suggested two possible reasons: the stepped-up U.S. and South Vietnamese attacks on Communist supply lines and depots, "or the fall-off may be due to regrouping and reorganization for larger attacks in the future."

After passing the emergency appropriation bill, the House also approved a $15.3 billion authorization measure for weapons, ships and missile buying and research for the armed services.

Army Brigade Digs In; Marines Kill Red Viets

Saigon, Viet Nam (AP)—U.S. Army paratroopers fresh from Okinawa, dug in at two southern air bases Wednesday while U.S. Marines, who arrived at Da Nang in March, killed eight Viet Cong in their most successful combat patrol of the war.

Marine squads played a cat and mouse game with Red guerrillas near Binh Thai, eight miles south of the Da Nang Air Base, and used rockets and heavy machine guns in the kill. Two of some 400 Leathernecks involved were wounded. The marines estimated 20 guerrillas got away.

A couple of miles closer to the base, a battalion of Vietnamese troops killed three Viet Cong, captured four and seized a small quantity of arms in a drive that continued into Wednesday. Two of the Vietnamese troops were killed and one wounded.

C130 transport planes ferried in 1,200 men of the 173rd Airborne Brigade for duty expected to be similar to that of the Marines—defense in depth of key installations, plus a sprinkling of offensive operations.

The rest of the 3,500-man brigade, the first American Army ground combat force committed to South Viet Nam, is expected shortly. The buildup, officially explained as intended to free Vietnamese garrison troops for combat, is increasing the U.S. military rolls to 36,000.

In the air war, 10 U.S. Navy jets from the carrier Midway slashed at railroad cars between Vinh, 160 miles south of Hanoi, and Thanh Hoa, 80 miles south of that Communist capital.

A spokesman said 11 cars were destroyed or damaged in the first attack, by four fighters. The second attack, by six other jets, was described without detail as successful. The spokesman said all planes returned safely.

MISSISSIPPI RECEDING AS CAUTION MAINTAINED

Hannibal, Mo. (AP)—The Mississippi River level was reported falling from Davenport, Iowa, to Hannibal, Mo., Wednesday but Army Engineers cautioned it still is several feet above flood stage.

The Sny Drainage District dike, protecting 40,000 acres and the evacuated community of Hull, Ill., continued to hold.

Hannibal, unprotected by a levee and partly flooded, remained 8 feet above flood stage. Quincy, Ill., was 7 feet above; Burlington, Iowa, 7 feet; Muscatine, Iowa, 6½ feet; Rock Island, Ill., 5 feet; Clinton, Iowa, 5½ feet, and Dubuque 5 feet.

Although levees protecting these cities are being watched, officials said that for all intents and purposes what has been called the worst Mississippi flood in 100 years is over.

Between Hannibal and St. Louis, the river, although above flood stage, is stationary and expected to begin falling in a couple days.

Most of the flood waters from the upper Mississippi have begun to slip past St. Louis into a broader channel which is expected to accommodate the water with room to spare.

Rebels Break Amplified Truce

Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic (AP)—Gunfire wounded four U.S. troops in a violent new outburst here Wednesday after the signing of an amplified cease-fire agreement in the Dominican civil war.

And a U.S. official charged that the rebel movement is Red-controlled and its provisional president is "moving closer to the Communists."

There were unconfirmed reports that at least four American soldiers were captured by the rebels in clashes after the insurgents and the rival military junta signed a document expanding and ratifying the cease-fire they agreed on last week.

56 Wounded

The latest casualties brought to 56 the number of U.S. battle wounded. Seven Americans have died since President Johnson ordered U.S. forces into Santo Domingo a week ago to protect U.S. lives and prevent a Communist takeover.

The cease-fire agreement has the immediate aim of ending hostilities between the rival Dominicans until a political settlement can be reached on the issues that caused bloody civil war to break out 12 days ago. It does not affect U.S. military positions.

A U.S. government official told a news briefing that Col. Francisco Caamano Dena, sworn in Tuesday as provisional president by the rebel movement, is not himself a Communist.

He added that the U.S. government has evidence that Caamano met Tuesday with members of three Communist organizations.

These Communists, the official said, "obtained from Caamano a solemn promise that if he wins (the presidency

Caamano Recognition Withheld

Washington (UPI)—The State Department Wednesday withheld recognition of the rebel Dominican "provisional government" formed under Col. Francisco Caamano Dena.

A department spokesman said, "In our view there is no effective government at the present time" in the Dominican Republic.

Press Officer Robert J. McCloskey also said that the United States still had "no candidate" to head a Dominican regime.

McCloskey said an effective Dominican government "would have to demonstrate that it was in control of the country, and that has yet to be demonstrated."

Election A Classic

By William O. Dobler

In many respects Tuesday's election might have been taken right from the pages of a political science book. It would constitute a perfect textbook example of our political system, its strengths and its weaknesses. Its weakness is demonstrated in the paltry 16,816 voters who went to the polls out of a registration list of more than 64,000 citizens.

This means that the highest vote-getter in the election, Richard O. Joyce with 9,415 tallies in his successful bid for re-election to the Airport Authority, received less than a 15 percent endorsement.

This is hardly true representative government. In the race for City Council, top vote-getter was newcomer Carroll Thompson who received 9,102 tallies for a popular support of slightly more than 14 percent. In any race with more than two candidates, no candidate is likely to get more than 50 percent of the registered voters so in that sense you can never have a completely representative election.

Thompson and Joyce, for instance, did each get more than 50 percent of the total vote cast and that reflects favorably upon them. But the fact remains that very few people bothered to go to the polls and that reflects poorly upon the electorate. Perhaps it was not an unusually exciting election but no election is so poor as to warrant a 31 percent turnout of voters.

The results again show some other classic patterns, such as the reversal of form from the primary. In winning his place on the City Council, Thompson came from fourth to first place in the balloting. John Lux won a place on the Board of Education by coming from third place and out of the money in the primary to second place and election in the general runoff.

These results demonstrate several things. For one, incumbents Edward A. Becker in the council race and J. Arthur Danielson in the Board of Education race were strong contenders. Therefore, in the primary they got about all the votes they were going to get. This frequently happens, with the general election defying the outcome of the earlier primary. The results in the case of Thompson and the case of Edward Coppel show another hard fact of political life. Thompson put on probably the only full-fledged campaign for office. That is, he had people out working the streets for him. He organized and attended coffees and other neighborhood gatherings for the purpose of explaining his candidacy to the voters. He did a lot of "and - taking" and "paid down the street."

Additionally, he did the other routine things such as mass mailings, campaign signs and cards and public advertising. All of these are things that are done by most candidates. Coppel reportedly put on a strong campaign between the primary and the general election, too, although it was not as apparent as Thompson's and, therefore, probably not as extensive. But Coppel's campaigning paid off as he came from a second to a first-place finish. This demonstrates the value of campaigning. It shows that anyone with the determination to do so has a chance of being elected to public office.

The meaning of the election is subject to speculation. It is possible that the election shows no particular significance one way or the other. Perhaps it merely reflects the personal opinion of the voters in regard to the various candidates. More than this, however, could be gleaned from the results if one wants to look for it.

Thompson, for instance, in his campaign stood for a vital approach to municipal affairs. He spoke in terms of a fresh analysis of old problems and a new look at our total city operation. His appeal was not to satisfaction and complacency, but rather, to a hope for change, a hope for something better.

We are inclined to think that this had a lot to do with his election, as well as did his active campaigning. We are inclined to think that Thompson will be a refreshing influence upon the City Council, intending no particular criticism of that body and its past record. The election of Lux over Danielson in the school board race undoubtedly highlights the issue of representation on the board. The board and school system has been attacked because all its members were from one large area of the city. Lux comes from a directly opposite geographic location to present board membership. Also, he piled up a big vote plurality in the northeast Lincoln precincts where the demand for greater representation is the heaviest.

The Airport Authority in races for both the full and short term finds no serious indictment of its record. However, candidates who represented a challenge to that record did quite well in the voting and that should encourage sober consideration by the authority of its programs and activities.

Without a doubt, the vast majority of American opinion is in favor of administrative actions at this time in both Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic. We have called the bluff of communism in both these cases and in no uncertain terms. We have tossed aside political consideration of our worldwide "public image" and come out slugging.

This is the policy that circumstances have demanded but does the President really need the kind of support he is asking for in requesting a $700 million appropriation from Congress? He says that the purpose is to demonstrate to the Reds the unquestioned determination of our nation to resist aggression.

It might be all right but equally important is that we not forget the other side of the coin. The United States has never shied away from a fight when it has been demanded and will not do so now but we have been and still are dedicated first and foremost to a peaceful settlement of all world affairs. This we dare not forget in the high emotion of proving our mettle.

a land that loved peace, and enjoyed a great deal of it. It preferred the task of being the kindly light that would show the way to a better state of human relationships. And we were generally loved for it.

Now we have been the number one power in the world for 23 years and we are learning that "uneasy lies the head that wears the crown." We still hanker for peace, but the world will not give it to us. We have taken from ourselves to reestablish the fallen nations. We have fed the hungry. We have worked for the United Nations. We have spent the lives of our own to keep the peace.

But the world instinctively mistrusts the most powerful nation. It fears the consequences of such a concentration. The enemies scheme for its annihilations. The friends doubt and draw away. This is the teaching of history.

Nebraska's Problem

Poverty is defined in today's America as any family of four whose annual income is $3,130 or less, or a single individual earning $1,540 or less.

For the family of four this means that there is 23 cents per meal for each member and $1.40 per day for all other human necessities.

It is for those in this income bracket, estimated at 34,600,000 Americans, that the War on Poverty movement is intended to help.

DREW PEARSON World Sees USA As Aggressor Nation

WASHINGTON — It was at 8:41 p.m. Eastern Standard time twenty years ago today that a general cessation of hostilities was agreed upon at Rheims and the great war in Europe began grinding to a final halt.

Today, twenty years later, the United States finds itself fighting a disagreeable, persistently bloody war half way round the globe; and has landed more troops on the soil of a Caribbean neighbor than that neighbor claims in its entire military establishment.

It also finds itself with the goodwill it had once built up around the world evaporated. It finds itself criticized, not merely by Pravda and Izvestia, but by its allies of NATO and its good neighbors in Latin America.

So before we slide into another world war, twenty years after the end of the last one, let's examine what we face, how we got there and how we can get out.

It is said that those who question current Johnson policy in South Viet Nam are appeasers.

This is the criticism of the anti-critics expressed in Congress and the State Department.

Outside the confines of the United States, criticism is different. In Japan, our staunchest ally in Asia, we are considered the aggressor in Viet Nam. Anti-American feeling is just as strong in Japan today as when President Eisenhower had to cancel his visit in 1960.

BOB CONSIDINE U.S. Peace Keeping Is Major Assignment

NEW YORK — We're mightily invested in danger spots overseas, over and above our NATO commitments and all the ships at sea. We have 14,000 men in Santo Domingo, close to 40,000 in Viet Nam and 50,000 in South Korea. One hundred thousand men affect families totaling another half million citizens. The hardware the men use was made by countless more Americans. Some of it is quite costly. An F-105 costs $2,500,000.

The public seems to feel that we won't be in Santo Domingo for any extended period, and the guess is probably correct. Viet Nam and South Korea are something else. We've now found it necessary to beef up participation in Viet Nam to 1) meet the mounting crisis and 2) try to win. The initiative swings over to the Americans a bit more each day. Six months ago our men could only advise, were not permitted to shoot unless shot at. Today we clear out increasingly large areas around our bases of operations.

The idea is to make sure that the areas concerned cannot lend themselves to the emplacement of VC mortar positions. If the VC brings up longer range stuff, as the Viet Minh did against Dien Bien Phu, then we'll probably expand to secure that area, too. Could become a big area, and need many more than 40,000 men to clear it and keep it clear.

As for Korea, our investment there is taking on an air of permanency that probably has impressed the Asiatic enemy who, being in

At that time, Eisenhower did visit the Philippines. Today, Johnson could not visit the Philippines. Riots would endanger his life.

There is also the Dean Rusk argument that China is the aggressor because it wants to play dominoes against the free world, knocking down Viet Nam, then Thailand, then all of Southeast Asia.

Readers of this column know that I hold no brief for Red China. But history shows that the Chinese, through the centuries, have not been military aggressors. They have spread their influence through culture, industry, economics, not by war.

But today the Chinese are so non-aggressive militarily that they permit U.S. fortifications on the islands of Quemoy and Matsu to remain only three and twelve miles off the Chinese mainland.

On March 24, 1955, Admiral Robert Carney, then Chief of Naval Operations, told Washington newsmen that the Chinese would invade Quemoy-Matsu by April 15. That was ten years and three weeks ago. The Chinese have not invaded.

It is true that the Chinese do not believe in coexistence, and have said so many, many times in the months of argument and name-calling with their communist rivals in Moscow. Students of their tactics believe that they really stand for is warfare by political, economic, cultural subversion.

JOSEPH G. G. MOLTER, M.D.

To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Molter: Our son, 39, was hospitalized four weeks with nephritis. For two months since then he has been under heavy medication, including cortisone, and now has developed diabetes. Could you give us some information regarding this?

—Mrs. R. T. J.

Cortisone can bring out latent or potential diabetes. The diabetes trait was already present but had not yet become apparent. This is one of the possibilities which must be watched in cortisone therapy as well as in other conditions.

The nephritis itself may have contributed to making the diabetes become active, since any stressful condition or occurrence can contribute to this—drugs, injury, infection, pregnancy, etc.—if the trait is already present.

Dear Dr. Molter: My nine-year-old son has an inordinate craving for sweets. Often when he says he is hungry he will turn down any food that isn't loaded with sugar. He prefers sweet liquids to solids. Would you say he suffers from the same condition that I am supposed to have—ideopathic hypoglycemia? Or perhaps hyperinsulinism?

—HENRY C.M.

Yes, sir, it could be ideopathic hypoglycemia, but that's as far as I am willing to go at this distance. Again, it could be another specific form of hypoglycemia (low sugar level in the blood).

In about one-third of the cases of children with hypoglycemia, this other form is responsible. It is due to one of the amino acids, leucine, which is present in protein foods.

I must concede that this leucine-induced form of hypoglycemia is relatively new, that is to say, it has been identified only fairly recently. However, feeding a small amount of carbohydrate (starch or sugar) AFTER a meal tends to offset the effect of the leucine factor.

Hypoglycemia appears to have a rather strong hereditary factor, and it would seem likely that this may be involved in your son's case. Taking a blood sugar test at the appropriate time after a meal should determine this.

Dear Dr. Molter: While brushing my 10-year-old daughter's hair today I noticed four or five gray strands about an inch above the temple on one side. Should our family doctor be consulted, or is this just something unusual but not alarming?

—MRS. C.M.

Assuming that a child is normally healthy, this is no cause for alarm and nothing need be done. It occurs fairly often when there is a family tendency toward early graying. The early gray hairs may not last anyway.

Note to Mrs. V. C.: No, pernicious anemia is NOT "another term for cancer of the blood." It cannot be cured, but it can be kept under control by periodic injections of Vitamin B12.

Dear Dr. Molter: I have three girls aged 2½, 2½, 1½ years, and 4 months. The 1½-year-old has begun to pull her hair out and swallow it. She doesn't do it in temper, but mostly when I put her up for her nap or to bed at night. She always pulls it in the same spot. What can I do?

—MRS. J. M.

This habit falls in the same category with such nervous gestures as nailbiting, lip-chewing, nose-picking, etc.

Because of the age range, this is a subtle way of biding for attention. Study the little girl's other attitudes. Is she jealous of the attention given either to her older or to her younger sister? Sometimes you catch a clue when a child is being scolded or criticized.

In any event, the hair-swallowing should be stopped since it can accumulate in the stomach as a ball, called a "trichobezoar" which may have to be removed surgically.

Your physician may have some suggestions, possibly a sedative to use at night until the habit is curbed. My own thoughts include the possibility of mittens at night (although to be sure youngsters usually don't like them), or a snug night cap, which perhaps might solve the whole problem.

Dear Dr. Molter: Please explain pleurodynia. I have had two attacks—in 1961 and in 1964.

—MRS. F. W.

This is acute, excruciating pain in the chest wall, and is commonly called epidemic pleurodynia because it occurs in epidemics, caused by the spread of one of the so-called Coxsackie viruses.

The ailment usually starts with a sudden fever and sore throat followed by severe pain in chest, stomach and chest wall.

Since the trouble then ordinarily clears up in from a few days to a week (or sometimes lasts a couple of weeks) treatment is aimed essentially at relief of the pain. The disease is very rarely fatal.

When it occurs in epidemics, identifying the cases is clear enough. In isolated cases, however, it could be confused with a heart attack, appendicitis or some other painful condition. In such instances laboratory tests can make positive diagnosis.

Dear Dr. Molter: Does brushing the teeth with hydrogen peroxide help the gums?

—MRS. E. N.

If the gums are healthy, they don't need it. If there is chronic infection, consult your dentist for specific treatment.

Dr. Molter is delighted to receive letters from his readers, but regrets that because of the great number received daily he cannot answer them individually. Whenever possible, Dr. Molter uses readers' questions in his column. Copyright, 1965, Pub. Newspaper Synd.

The Ladies

Blair, Neb.

Will the female of the species become the dominant ones in our "Great Society" of the future? Should we of the lowly, if preening and proud, male sex be looking to our laurels?

I was tempted the other day to suggest that if the campuses of our colleges and other higher institutions of learning were to be purged of the daughters of doting parents whose primary aim is to spend two to four years and sometimes more on a college campus to "catch a man," there would be ample room for the much fewer left to benefit from the rewards of a higher education.

Then I heard a very enthusiastic, learned, factual and convincing dissertation by an obviously talented and experienced layman, appearing on a popular afternoon television show, to the effect that the female of our society is much the stronger, the more talented, the more courageous, and generally capable of assuming a much more dominant role in what is generally recognized, at least by men, as a "man's world." After all, it is generally accepted that the women have a corner on the money of the nation, considerable influence in the home, and are assuming more and more positions of influence and leadership in politics, industry and the professions.

It is still too early even to dare suggest the possibility of a woman president of the United States, but certainly not too early to envision an increasingly important position on all fronts and in all phases of our daily lives by the ladies—God bless them.

The Right

Lincoln, Neb.

Lincoln's turnout of voters on Tuesday, fairly typical of the entire American scene under similar circumstances, is a disgrace to our national institution of the right of free choice.

The apathy of the American voter toward this, his most precious right, is alarming when one considers the efforts that go on, unremittingly, night and day and without cessation among communist promoters and others whose very being is dedicated to the destruction of all rights of free men everywhere.

What must we do to awaken people to an exercise of this privilege? This suggests tion will never be put into practice, of course, but I am positive it would produce immediate and violent results — violent in the outcry of the worst offenders.

I suggest that anyone who does not vote at an election, without a reasonably good excuse, be denied the right to vote for at least the next two following elections.

Once around, and we would see such an outpouring of indignant citizens bent on their constitutional rights that it would be a marvelous sight to behold, especially on the front pages of papers in other countries.

Live, Let Live

Bladen, Neb.

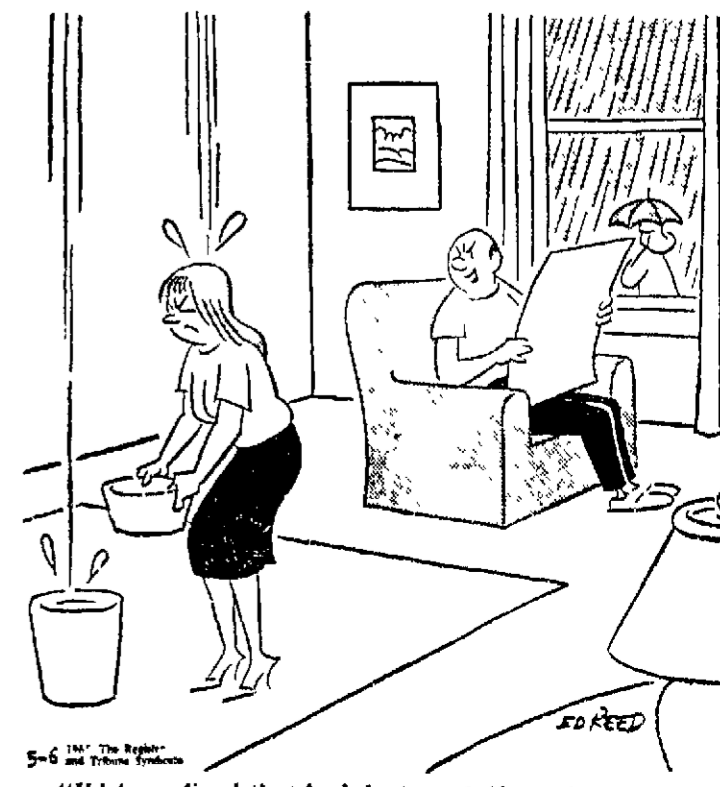

I hope we as American citizens will respond to Vice President Hubert Humphrey's speech in Omaha, urging us to seek life and liberty and quit with wars and killing.

I hope there will be strength enough to save our good country, the good old U.S.A. that was built up by poor and honest people from all ranks of life and which no one has any right to destroy.

Let us seek to live and let live, as there is plenty for all. I pray that we will be able to overcome all the present strife that exists, and be human in every respect.

Bicycle Trail Provides Enjoyment For People Of All Ages

By ROBERT PETERSON

One of the joys in Palm Beach, Fla., is its famed free bicycle trail. Created half a century ago, the trail, protected from auto traffic, starts at the middle of this storied island and runs along the blue waters of Lake Worth for three-and-a-half miles.

At the end of the trail is a soft drink stand where cyclists can rest on benches and gaze past the inlet out to sea. Then they're ready for the return trip. Most cyclists do the seven-mile round trip in two hours.

It's probably the most beautiful bicycle trail anywhere. It's level and hard surfaced, ranging in width from 20 feet down to narrow strips of six feet. It is shaded half its distance by low hanging palms, water oak and banyan trees, and there's a profusion of exotic flowers such as oleanders, hibiscus and magnolia. The trail runs so close to the lake that cyclists can hear the water lapping the shoreline.

An added delight of the trail is that cyclists can peep at backyards of magnificent homes along the way, with their manicured lawns, swimming pools, and patios which seem to leap straight out of the pages of house-and-garden magazines.

If you don't have your own bicycle, there are two shops at the start of the trail where folks from freckled youngsters to austere dowagers rent bikes for 50 cents an hour, or seven dollars a week. There are even adult tricycles for those who haven't cycled in decades and fear they've lost the knack. Many vacationers rent a bike when they arrive, use it for two or three rides a day on the trail, and keep it locked at night on bicycle racks provided at local hotels.

Unlike many diversions, bicycling can be enjoyed by folks of all ages. Parents are glad to see small children enjoying the safety of bike riding on trails protected from motor traffic. Teen-agers and middle-agers love bicycling, and so do modern elders. One wonders why every city in the nation hasn't provided central bicycle trails for residents interested in this healthiest of outdoor pursuits.

The maid at our hotel is a plump, white-haired widow who obviously delights in work. She sits in a wicker chair in the hall and whenever guests leave their rooms she flashes a warm smile and seemingly can't wait to pop into their rooms, make the beds, dust and put things ship-shape. Her housekeeping is so meticulous that several guests have said they'd like to take her home with them.

Yesterday I asked if she'd mind telling me her age. "Not at all—I'm 78 years old," she replied. Why was she still working? "Because I love to work and because I'm saving money to pay off the mortgage on my home in West Palm Beach."

"I just work here during the season—about four months. Then I take occasional cleaning jobs during the summer and fall. Many people are shocked that I'm still on the job at my age."

But I was brought up to enjoy work."

Isn't it hard for an older person to find work? "Yes and no. It's difficult if folks don't know you and what you can do. But if you've got a reputation for hard work and dependability, everyone wants you and they don't seem to care how old you are."

Legislature OK's Establishment Of 'Catherland'

The Legislature Wednesday adopted a resolution designating a portion of Webster County as "Catherland" in honor of Nebraska authoress Willa Cather.

The resolution, No. 33, introduced by Red Cloud Sen. Kenneth Bowen, designated as "Catherland" that area which formed the principal backdrop for Miss Cather's works, including the towns of Line, Red Cloud, Batin, Glenwood, Harmony, Catherton, Inavale, Walnut Creek and Potsdam.

The Willa Cather Pioneer Memorial is located at Red Cloud. The authoress was enshrined in Nebraska's Hall of Fame in 1963.

Knight Asks Revival Of Pardon Board Bill

Sen. John Knight of Lincoln moved Wednesday to revive his bill calling for submitting to voters a constitutional amendment under which the Legislature would create a new board of pardons.

The measure, LB573, had been killed by the Government Committee.

Unit's Try To Finish Fails

The Legislature's Urban Affairs Committee attempted in vain Wednesday to complete its business for the 1965 session.

A motion to kill the last bill remaining in committee failed on a 4-2 vote, with five affirmative votes needed. The committee will meet later to take action on the measure.

The committee received a Justice Department opinion Wednesday which stated the bill generally clarified present laws rather than grants additional powers to first class cities.

Legal Profession's Role In Solving Problems Explained By Brownell

The legal profession's role in resolving problems caused by changes in the legal system was explained to leading members of the Nebraska bench and bar Wednesday by former U.S. Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell.

Brownell, a native of Lincoln and a graduate of the University of Nebraska, addressed the 1965 Law Day Luncheon sponsored by the Lincoln Bar Association.

City, county, state and federal judges, other attorneys

Served With Ike

Brownell served in the Eisenhower administration and is now with the law firm of Lord, Day and Lord in New York City.

He said that important legal problems brought on by social change and recent developments in the law could be solved, in part, by positive leadership from the organized bar.

As an example, Brownell cited the American Bar Association's contribution to the presidential disability amendment being debated by Congress.

Key Problem

This question involving the orderly transfer of presidential power has historically been "the most important unsolved constitutional problem, and the legal profession has taken the right type of leadership in solving it," he said.

Similarly, Brownell said, the profession can help to relieve the problem of congestion in trial courts on the state level and should develop a plan for the organized bar to handle legal aid to the poor.

LINCOLN JOBLESSNESS HIT 3.5% DURING MARCH

Unemployment in Lincoln during March was pegged at 2.600 or 3.5% of the labor force, according to the Lincoln office of the Nebraska Department of Labor, division of employment.

Unemployment insurance claims indicated that 50% of the jobless were construction workers, 18% were trade workers, 16% were manufacturing employees and 7% were service employees.

Construction employment increased by 150 during March, transportation, communications and utilities and services were up 50.

Government employment dropped 200 due to reduction in educational services, and trade employment fell by 100. Manufacturing stayed about the same.

Since March, 1964, nonagricultural jobs have increased by 1,200 with trade employment up 750 from one year ago and government employment up 550.

Employment in the Lincoln metropolitan area totaled 70,750 in March, which was the same as in February and an increase of 650 from March 1964.

PERUVIANS TO VISIT NU

Eleven Peruvian college students will visit the University of Nebraska Thursday through Monday as part of a special State Department cultural exchange program.

Mrs. Rowena Boykin, assistant foreign student advisor at the University and coordinator of the program, said the purpose of the program is to give the students a chance to observe college student life and activity in the United States.

The Peruvians will arrive Thursday and will be well-come by Chancellor Clifford M. Hardin at 9:30 a.m. Friday in the Nebraska Union.

Their itinerary includes: a report on the University's Latin American Studies Program; tours of the City and East Campuses, discussion with staff members of the Nebraska Agricultural Extension Service; a visit to a Nebraska farm; tours of the Capitol and a visit with Gov. Morrison.

The students will attend Ivy Day ceremonies and attend classes of their choice Monday.

Protest on any subject seems to be the thing this year. It's interesting to find the New York World's Fair is unfair—or at least the New York part of it.

It was a drippy, rainy, miserable day for picketing. The pickets were from CORE (for racial equality).

They picketed the New York Pavilion. Protesting housing jobs, police brutality, a shotgun indictment of nearly everything lettered on its shouldered signs.

Alongside, there was another group of pickets bearing signs that read "SPONGE." Further detailed as "Society for the Prevention of Negroes Getting Everything."

There was a little shoving and catcalls. And a few of New York's Finest in blue came up and moved the picket lines further apart.

The Fair people investigated. They said the SPONGE group appeared to be high school kids. And they "doubted if such an organization really existed."

After awhile the rain got heavier. Too much for SPONGE who retreated with coats pulled over their heads.

And by and by, the CORE pickets took off, too.

Though the Fair lost $17.5 million last year, the Fair

German Defeat Party

Bad Godesberg, Germany (AP)—The Soviet Union's ambassador to West Germany, Andrei Smirnov, has hired the biggest hall in town and invited thousands of guests for a reception Sunday marking Germany's World War II capitulation.

Just for ducks, ducks, I punched out "London" on the travel machine. The machine gave me a Thames boat ride and the time of the Changing of the Guard.

Which shows that man and machine are often far apart.

The first thing I intend to do when I reach London is go to a pub called the Grenadier and have some Scotch beef and a cold lager. An electronic brain wouldn't think of that.

Oil Stocks Complaints Probe Underway—Ley

By LARRY J. FRUHLING
United Press International
State Banking Director
Henry Ley said Wednesday an investigation is underway to check out "about a dozen" complaints on the sale of stock in oil well drilling operations in the state.

Ley said a special assistant state's attorney general was appointed about a week and a half ago to investigate the complaints.

"We feel that maybe the normal investor has been taken advantage of," he said.

Joint Probe

The first step in the probe,
Ley said, would be to determine if the sale of stocks across state lines is involved.
If they are not, he said, there is no jurisdiction over their sale.

He explained that the sale of oil securities are not regulated under Nebraska's "Blue Sky" law, but that if the stocks are involved in interstate transactions then the federal government has jurisdiction.

If it is determined that the stocks are going into other states, Ley said, then the Federal Securities Exchange Commission and the Banking Department will cooperate in the investigation.

Ley said the complaints were received by the Securities Division of the Banking Department during the last two months. Most of them came from the oil area of the Panhandle, he said.

Ley described the situation as one that "blows hot and cold," but noted that this was the first probe of oil complaints since he became banking director 15 months ago.

"This situation occurs when things are kind of quiet in the industry," he said. "And, of course, things are ex rem: v quiet in Nebraska at the present time."

No Pattern

Ley said the complaints followed no particular pattern, but that "they always involve the investment of money in stock and ending up with stock with no value."

He added: "If the money raised for a well is reasonable, then it is no more than a satisfactory gamble on the part of the investor. But when they sell more than the cost involved, then you get into this sort of an operation."

Ley said it was difficult to tell how many individuals might be involved since it is possible to form a separate corporation for each well.
"But large, competent concerns don't do this," he added.

Pollution Council To Meet Friday

The State Water Pollution Control Council is scheduled to meet Friday in Omaha
State Sanitation Engineer T
A Filipi said Wednesday.

Filipi said the meeting would begin at 10 a.m. at the Missouri River treating plant.
The committee plans to acquaint itself with Omaha's plan to build a $2.5 million punch solids disposal plant and to review a recent city ordinance aimed at cutting the amount of packing house grease going into the Missouri River, he added.

He said oil securities were exempted from state control as an effort to promote the oil industry in Nebraska.

"When we get complaints it is up to the Securities Division to check them out—to find out if any laws are being broken and then go on from there," he added.

Luna Pokes Rails For Lack Of 'New Thinking'

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

The national president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen criticized the railroads Wednesday for "lack of new blood, new ideas and new thinking."

In Lincoln for the 23rd annual meeting of the Nebraska Association of Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and auxiliaries, Charles Luna of Cleveland, Ohio, said that there is lack of progress in railroads because there is lack of thinking on the part of railroadmen.

He said when young men have ideas they are not in a position authoritatively to voice them and after they have acquired the smarts and authority, they are so near retirement they feel it is a waste of time from their standpoint.

"If the railroads would spend as much time trying to figure out how to get more business as they do trying to cheat workers out of a just claim, they would have more money than they know what to do with," Luna said.

Defeating Purpose

He emphasized that the railroads are defeating their original purpose—serving the

Supreme Court Announces Jury Instruction Study Unit

The Nebraska Supreme Court Wednesday announced the selection of attorneys and judges to aid in a study of the form and content of jury instruction in Nebraska.

The study, launched last January with the naming of an eight-member main committee, will include instructions to civil and criminal juries.

SKYDIVERS NOT WELCOMED TO NUDIST CAMP

Ann Arbor, Mich. (AP) — A man who operates a nudist camp has complained to the Washtenaw County prosecutor's office that unwelcome skydivers are dropping in on his camp.

Thomas Odell, who runs a 20-acre health camp near Clinton, Mich., sought trespassing warrants against at least two skydivers after they floated into his nudist camp.

Odell contended the parachutists dropped in deliberately, but a spokesman for the prosecutor's office said the two men blamed contrary winds for landing them in the nudist camp.

The spokesman said an investigation had been started, but no other immediate action was taken.

Beer Scooped Up

Providence, R.I. (AP) — A trailer truck loaded with nearly 20,000 cans of beer spilled 1,900 cans onto the highway, and before the truck driver could get his truck out of traffic and stop, motorists and pedestrians had scooped up all the cans and fled.

...by the present method of larger and more complex machinery.

...the union president said.

He said that a committee should be appointed to look at the entire railroad system in the United States and then make recommendations on how mergers might be worked out to best serve the public.

Luna refused comment on eliminating 20,000 men from train crews as proposed in LB336 before the Nebraska Legislature.

However, he said in his opinion it is comparable to a co-pilot on airplanes—"I feel better when I know two or three of them are there."

Opposition

The state railroaders were expressing opposition to the proposed repeal of the state full crew law and were distributing literature opposing LB336.

Other labor grievances will be discussed at the two-day meeting.

The meeting will be climaxed by a banquet Thursday featuring Luna as the speaker.

New Farm Legislation Is Predicted By Young

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—The present and suggested farm programs are being studied by a committee headed by Sen. Robert Young, R-Ind., said Wednesday. The committee probably will report by June or July.

I hope and feel sure that we will be able to make some substantial improvements in the program proposed by President Johnson, said the second-ranking Republican member of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Young in a report to constituents said the present wheat program and the new administration proposal have many shortcomings.

"The price level provided for the farmer is inadequate," he said. "It is still too complicated and it gives the secretary of agriculture too much flexibility in determining the income levels of our wheat producers."

Young noted that since Johnson sent his proposal to Congress, attacks have been intensified on the wheat certificate payments, part of

Doctor Of Letters Degree Will Go To Rev. Janzow

Seward — The Rev. W. F. Janzow, president of Concordia Teachers College, Seward, will be awarded the degree of doctor of letters by Concordia Theological Seminary, Springfield, Ill., at the seminary commencement May 28.

President Janzow received his early training at Concordia College, St. Paul, Minn., completing his theological studies at Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, in 1944, graduating with a bachelor of divinity degree.

For several years he was pastor of rural parishes in Minnesota.

Falls City, Lincoln Pair Get 4-Year Scholarships

Nine Nebraska high school students have been awarded scholarships totaling $5,400 from the Luther Drake Scholarship fund established through provisions of a will left by the late Mrs. Grace W. Drake of Omaha.

Carol Zimmerman of Falls City and Lawrence Whited Jr. of Lincoln, were named recipients of 4-year scholarships. Other Drake Scholarship winners announced by Dean E. F. Frolik of the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture and Home Economics included: Connie Cotton, Omaha; Craig Dreeszen, Lincoln; Kent King, Kearney; Linda Nelson, York; Cheryl Pospisil, Madison; Gail Skinner, Wisner; and Clinton Thomas, Milford.

The scholarships awarded Miss Zimmerman and young Whited have a value of $2,000, based on maintenance of a satisfactory scholastic average during their four years of college. The remaining Drake Scholarships are valued at $200 each.

The freshman recipients were selected on the basis of scores in the University Regents examination, high school record, recommendations of high school officials and personal interviews.

Miss Zimmerman, 17 year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Zimmerman, is a senior at Falls City High School where she is enrolled in a college preparatory course. She won honors at the Peru Scholastic Contest two years, placing in geometry and world history, has been on the honor roll throughout high school and is a University Regents Scholarship alternate.

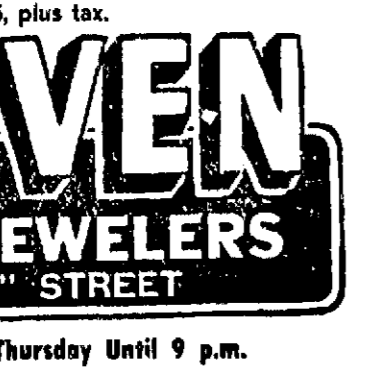

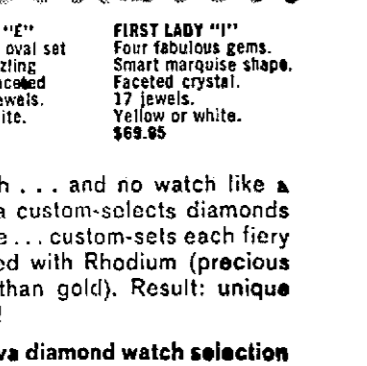

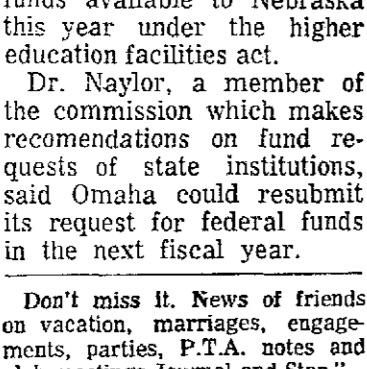

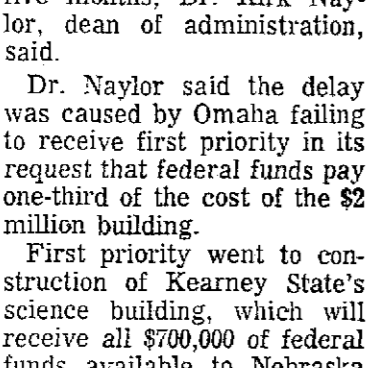

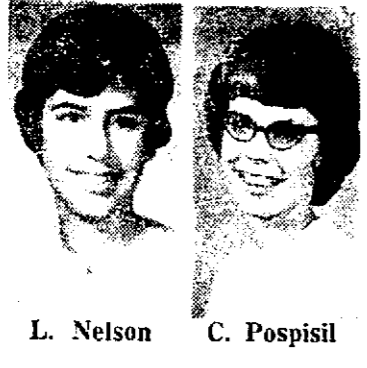

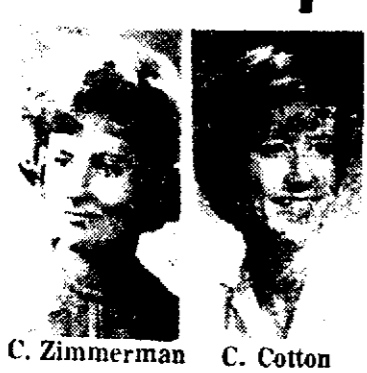

She has been active in the Girl's Athletic Association, Pep Club and drama. In nine years of 4-H work, she has won many blue ribbons, served as foods judge at the State Fair and has attended both district and junior leader 4-H camps. She is secretary of the Luther League and full time organist at her church. As a junior she was selected to make the I.O.O.F. and Rebekah's United Nations Pilgrimage.

Larry Whited, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Whited, 6841 Walker, Lincoln, is 17 and a senior at Lincoln Northeast High. He has been an honor student throughout high school and active in intramural sports. He plans a career in biochemistry and will enroll in the University College of Agriculture and Home Economics in September.

Dr. Naylor said the delay was caused by Omaha failing to receive first priority in its request that federal funds pay one-third of the cost of the $2 million building. First priority went to construction of Kearney State's science building, which will receive all $700,000 of federal funds available to Nebraska this year under the higher education facilities act.

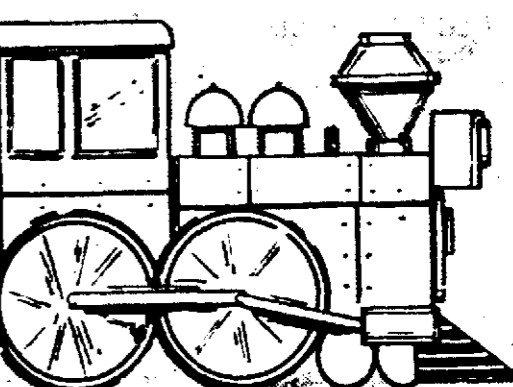

Dr. Naylor, a member of the commission which makes recommendations on fund requests of state institutions, said Omaha could resubmit its request for federal funds in the next fiscal year.

4-5% Teacher Pay Hikes Asked

By LUCILLE HUTCHINSON
Star Staff Writer

Salary proposals for 1965-66 that would give Lincoln teachers an over-all 4-5% raise and pay administrative personnel on the basis of an evaluation of effectiveness were recommended at a special Board of Education meeting Wednesday.

No action was taken by the board. President James Stuart said that members needed at least a week to consider and discuss the schedules. He set May 11 as the meeting date for board action.

Supt. Steven N. Watkins, presenting the district's recommendations, said that the 4-5% raise would add $442,014 to the 1964-65 payroll of $8,507,211.

He estimated that the proposed pay raise would vary individually from 3-11%, depending upon which step the teacher is in.

3% Last Year

Last year teachers past the probationary period received a 3% pay increase, plus the additional salary gained by advancing one step on the pay scale.

No salary increase was proposed for the seven full-time non-degree teachers in the Lincoln system.

Watkins explained that the salary proposals had been suggested to "keep us in the market for young people who are just graduating from college and to retain those teachers now in the system."

Wilbur F. Woll, chairman of the Lincoln Education Association (LEA) salary committee, and Ely Feistner, LEA executive secretary, expressed disappointment at the proposed increases, noting that their index salary schedule raises would have been "four or five times as much."

In a previous board meeting the LEA has asked the board to consider an index schedule which would set a base pay according to a teacher's degree. Yearly increments would then amount to a percentage of the original base.

'No Elasticity'

The superintendent objected to the index proposal because it has "no elasticity. It is definitely tied all the way to the base salary."

... WOULD ADD $442,014 TO DISTRICT'S BUDGET

This restricts the district from increasing the base salary because the schools cannot afford it. He claimed that systems using the index method are asked to change their base pay almost every year.

"An entirely new approach in terms of salaries for administrative personnel," which Watkins said "we are not calling merit pay," would encourage self-improvement by providing differentials in salary for performance."

The proposal would categorize administrative and supervisory personnel in six groupings of responsibilities.

Within minimum and maximum pay levels, a composite evaluation of the person's effectiveness in his work—made by those in supervisory positions—determines his salary, Watkins said. The personnel in the groups are recommended for salaries according to a yearly evaluation, he added.

The Schedule

The proposed minimum schedule for the 1965-66 school year for personnel with a master's degree and satisfactory rating is as follows:

LEVEL	SALARY
1	$ 7,500
2	8,000
3	8,500
4	9,000
5	9,500
6	10,000
7	10,500
8	11,000
9	11,500
10	12,000
11	12,500
12	13,000

The six groups would include:

Group I: coordinator of nursing services, levels 1-4.

Group II: elementary principals (1-15 teachers), levels 1-5.

Group III: elementary principals (16-32 teachers); coordinators of elementary and girls physical education, child welfare, pupil accounting, research, speech, secondary vocal music, instrumental music, elementary music, home economics, reading, audiovisual center, adult home and family life, art, special employment and libraries; director of food services, and school psychologist and coordinator of special education, levels 1-7.

Group IV: elementary principals (over 32 teachers); coordinators of industrial arts and industrial education, maintenance and secondary business, elementary education, junior high curriculum, senior high curriculum; and principal of adult high school and coordinator of adult education, levels 3-8.

Group V: junior high principals, and directors of athletics and coordinator of secondary boys' physical education, purchasing, health, physical education and safety, and budgeting and accounting, levels 4-10.

Group VI: directors of guidance, personnel and vocational and industrial education, levels 6-12.

employees involved, the superintendent told the board.

Watkins emphasized that the proposed system "does not go below the administrative groups. We have no intention of putting it down on the teacher level."

Board member Robert Magee pointed out that the schools had not found an adequate way to evaluate teachers yet.

The Lincoln board also received pay raise proposals amounting to a 4½% increase for maintenance employees. Included in the proposal was the possible addition of a building inspector at $8,000 per year to be hired when contracts for the new East High School are let, according to Watkins.

Not in Budget

A general 4% increase for clerical workers in the system was also proposed. Pay raises were also suggested for food service employees, although their salaries are not a part of the school budget.

Supt. Watkins indicated that the total proposed salary increases would amount to $523,908.63, costing approximately 2-3 mills.

In other business the Board of Education accepted the low bid from Pigott, Inc. in the amount of $13,527 for wood furniture to be used in the renovation of Irving Junior High this summer.

Barbara Haskins Wins 1st Rathbun Memorial Grant

Barbara Haskins of 4115 South St. has been awarded the first Garden Rathbun Memorial Foundation scholarship of $150 through Lincoln Elks Lodge No. 80.

The scholarship was presented Wednesday night by Jack Jensen, exalted ruler of the Elks Lodge, and Vince Collura, trustee.

Miss Haskins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Haskins, is a freshman in Teachers College majoring in Spanish and French. She has a grade average of 7.7 (9.0 is perfect). Her plans are not definite, but she is interested in interpreting and teaching overseas.

A graduate of Southeast High School, she has won honors in a National Spanish Contest. Since attending the University she has been active in the Spanish and French Clubs and Delta Delta Delta sorority.

Glass Makers, Oldsters Differ

Washington (UPI) — The nation's glass container manufacturers and a spokesman for two groups of retired oldsters differed Wednesday over the need for legislation to standardize package sizes and labels.

R. L. Cheney of New York, executive director of the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute, told the Senate Commerce Committee that the bill "would actually cost consumers millions and millions of dollars annually."

TRAIN FARE UP FOR 5 STUDENTS ON SHORT TRIP

Iowa City (AP)—The fare for a two-block ride on a railroad switch engine by five University of Iowa students was set at $270 Wednesday.

That was the total fine and costs levied against the students by Police Judge Roger Ivie.

The students took the switch engine in the yards here last week, drove it about two blocks and then left it blocking a crossing.

The students, fined $50 and costs each, were Richard Effland, Terry R. Sutton, Linn D. Hunsaker, and Kenneth W. Rouse, all 22, and Gary H. Ackerman, 23, all of the Iowa City area.

Poet Views Worth Of Liberal Arts

Liberal arts colleges and their worthiness came under the "indirect" scrutiny of author-poet John Ciardi before a University of Nebraska audience Wednesday afternoon.

Noting that there is often "considerable question" about the good of a liberal arts college, Ciardi, now poetry editor of Saturday Review magazine, "meandered to the idea" that this kind of school teaches a person that questions only open upon more and more questions.

Furthermore, he said that he was not entirely against "the courage of one's convictions," but felt a worrier ideal might be "courage of one's confusions."

"Otherwise," he said, "it means you're not thinking." Admitting that he "never got to anything directly," Ciardi weaved ideas about a "body of knowledge," looking for "tonalities," and "means of perception" into his topic.

Ciardi related all of his topics of consideration into the "ability to project upon oneself. Isn't that what we get out of a liberal arts college?"

He answered his own question: "It gets you out of yourself into an experience of the human race with which you can identify." In such a school students are exposed to the arts—forms that express the human nervous system.

Russ Ice Island North Of Alaska

Washington (AP)—The Navy affirmed Wednesday that Russian scientists have established a party on another floating ice island, 450 miles north of Point Barrow, Alaska.

A spokesman said in answer to questions that the establishment by the Soviets of ice island NP14 "follows the normal pattern of Arctic operations the Russians have been following since 1950."

Diocesan Women's Council Convenes Here Thursday

Lincoln Diocesan Council of Catholic Women made last-minute preparations and held a workshop on women in community service here Wednesday before the opening of their convention Thursday morning at the Cornhusker Hotel.

Some 80 members of the board of directors registered Wednesday afternoon before a dinner and meeting. At least 500 women of the Lincoln Diocesan Council from an area across the state south of the Platte River are expected to attend the convention sessions.

A panel discussion in the morning will feature superintendents of parochial schools in Lincoln, Omaha and Grand Island and Sen. Eugene T. Mahoney of Omaha.

The conference participants will be addressed during the meetings by the Very Rev. Raymond Hain and Sister Mary Luke, superior general of sisters of Loretto.

An interfaith panel in the afternoon is to feature a Protestant pastor, a Jewish rabbi and a Catholic woman.

Local Naval Reservists Eye Sweep

Lincoln Naval Reserve units appear to have a chance at the first clean sweep in their history during their annual inspection this week.

Cmdr. J. L. Pierce, Construction Battalion Program Officer on the staff of Commandant Ninth Naval District, cautioned that scores would have to be audited before final results could be told, but the air at the Naval Reserve Training Center was optimistic.

All three divisions, SeaBees, Security Group, and Surface had tentative scores near or above the cutting point of 3.35. A score of 4.0 is perfect, and anything above 3.35 qualifies a division to compete for a national trophy.

Cmdr. Pierce, Cmdr. M. C. English of Sioux City, Ia., and Cmdr. J. R. Murrell of St. Joseph, Mo., have been inspecting the division since Sunday. Final scores will be determined when the inspection sheets are gone over at Ninth Naval District headquarters in Great Lakes, Ill.

Best previous results since the Naval Reserve was established in Lincoln in 1946 is two divisions at one time in national competition.

The divisions and their commanding officers: Surface Division 9-145(L), Cmdr. J. E. Peterson of Lincoln, Construction Battalion Division 9-21, Lt. Cmdr. G. R. Williamson of Lincoln; Naval Security Group Division 9-14, Lt. D. C. Classen of Omaha.

Cmdr. G. M. Overgaard of Lincoln has overall charge of all Naval Reserve units in Lincoln.

Dahls To Represent NWU At Dedication

Dr. and Mrs. Sam Dahl will represent Nebraska Wesleyan University at the dedication June 29-July 1 of Wroxton College, Wroxton Abbey, England.

Dr. Dahl, dean of the college, will also participate in an international conference on higher education to be held in connection with the dedication.

The conference topic: "What Should be the Common Elements of Higher Education in all Nations of the World?"

Dr. Dahl said the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, Adlai Stevenson, would speak at the dedication June 30. He said the college, purchased by Fairleigh-Dickinson College of Rutherford, N. J., will be used as a center for students seeking a master's degree in English Literature.

Salt Lake Police Catch Burglar As Chimney Sweeps

Salt Lake City (AP)—Police in suburban Bountiful north of here turned chimney sweeps for a few hours early Wednesday to clear up a burglary attempt.

Inside the Bountiful State Bank's chimney, they found a 17-year-old boy.

Police said the boy tried to enter the bank through its chimney, but didn't realize the chimney was tapered. They pulled him out unharmed four hours after he became stuck.

Telephone Warbles

London (AP)—The telephone of the future—one without a ring—was introduced to the British public. Instead of ringing, the telephone starts with a soft birdlike warble that slowly builds up to a loud but not a nerve-shattering warble.

Alabama Negroes Join CORE Group Protesting Syracuse 'Racial Hypocrisy'

Syracuse, N.Y. (UPI)—Nineteen Alabama Negroes joined by local members of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), Wednesday night staged a seven-block freedom march in this industrial city to protest the North's alleged racial "hypocrisy."

The Alabamians and the 300 local CORE members then gathered with 1,500 other persons in Clinton Square to hear CORE Director James Farmer condemn Syracuse as "the worst of the larger cities in New York state" regarding racial problems.

Farmer said he knew there were sizable problems in New York City and Rochester, scene of riots last summer. But he said they were not quite as bad as in Syracuse.

"I'm not predicting riots," Farmer said. "Predictions of riots may be self-fulfilling."

The conditions which caused last year's riots still exist but there is still time to head off trouble."

Job Opportunities

The Alabama Negroes arrived in Syracuse late Wednesday to touch off a series of civil rights drives against white Northerners' attitude toward race problems, particularly in job opportunities.

The Southerners, from Selma and Birmingham, arrived in a bus on the side of which bold letters proclaimed their destination as "Selma."

"We have shaken up Selma and we've come to shake up Syracuse, too," they chanted on their journey. They marched from the bus depot to the square, where they were addressed by Farmer and other civil rights leaders.

Farmer told the rally that those who have been stung by the plight of people in the South should "weep just as big and just as bitter over the plight of the people in Syracuse."

CORE Denial

When he asked why a person didn't speak up, a white youth dressed in a sweatshirt jumped on the makeshift podium and denied CORE's charges of racial discrimination here.

"Somebody has to speak up for the white race," said Jack Clements, 23, of Syracuse, a self-employed construction worker.

Farmer, both in his address at the rally and later to newsmen, criticized Mayor William F. Walsh for not being present. He said Walsh "skipped town."

Fannie L. Hammer, an official of the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party, told the rally she decided to come to Syracuse because the white people aren't going to solve your problems. We have to solve them by ourselves.

Picket, Vigil Set

The demonstrators planned to picket Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. Thursday and stage a vigil at the Onondaga County Jail, where civil rights demonstrators in past months have been lodged following their arrests at the power company.

The Negroes' main target will be the alleged "token" hiring policies of Niagara Mohawk Power Corp., which has headquarters in this industrial city of 216,000. Local CORE demonstrators have been picketing the utility corporation. Many arrests have resulted. The utility has denied any discrimination.

A spokesman said arrival of the Southerners would focus national attention on the hypocrisy of Northern employers who talk a lot about civil rights but don't do anything about it.

Inspect Offices

The intent is to have the Selma people go in and inspect the offices of Niagara Mohawk Thursday to see firsthand the employment situation there," CORE said. Picketing is scheduled Thursday. No sit-ins have been slated.

Mayor Walsh said the Selma visitors were welcome. But he charged the protest was "designed to embarrass this city." He said the demonstrators will return home with the conviction that Syracuse "has never been, and never can be a Selma."

The North has accused the South of segregation, while practicing segregation itself," said Selma demonstrator Charlie Brown during an earlier stop-over in Buffalo.

A similar stop was planned for Rochester, N.Y., scene of last summer's racial riots, but was called off because the bus ran behind schedule.

Court To Ponder Appeal In Rape

The State Supreme Court Wednesday took under advisement the appeal of four Stanton County youths now serving prison terms for forcible rape.

The four—Kenneth Hunt, Robert Musack, Arnold Vollbrecht and William Watts, were each sentenced to four years in prison after being found guilty by a Stanton County District Court jury.

Attorneys for the four argued before the high court Wednesday that evidence presented at the trial did not warrant a conviction on the forcible rape charge.

$68.5 Million Construction Fund Bill Advanced, 31-12

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature Wednesday battled down four attempts to reduce appropriations in the proposed six-year, $68.5 million state capital construction program, then advanced the bill on a 31-12 vote.

The measure, LB890, recommended by the Budget Committee, provides for the expenditure of $23.0 million during the 1965-67 biennium, including $15.9 million at the University of Nebraska.

Only change made in the proposal was to transfer some $200,000 in funds for land acquisition at the University and $100,000 proposed for a new classroom and office building on the downtown campus to fund the first unit of a new women's physical education facility at NU.

The proposal, offered by Sen. Kenneth Bowen of Red Cloud, won 29-15 approval. It will release a $104,000 private grant for use in construction of the physical education facility.

The transfer leaves the university with $1,050,000 for land acquisition during the 1965-67 biennium, and $2 million for the new classroom and office building.

Sen. Dale Payne's bid to knock out all land acquisition funds for the university during the coming biennium fell on a 12-32 count.

Sen. Henry Pedersen Jr. of Omaha failed three times in efforts to reduce funds in the bill.

His attempt to remove $820,000 for the university to complete a new music building fell on a 14-28 vote.

His effort to eliminate $335,000 for boiler plant system housing and addition at Chadron State College was kayoed on a 3-33 count.

And, finally, his bid to remove $90,000 to complete a new fine arts building at Wayne State College was buried on a 2-29 vote.

1,889 from general file were Sens. Sam Klaver, Eugene Mahoney, Harold Moylan, Pedersen and William Skarda, all of Omaha; Hal Bauer of Lincoln, S. H. Brauer Sr. of Norfolk, Herb Nore of Genoa, Ira Paine of Grand Island, Chet Paxton of Thedford, William Wylie of Elgin and Payne.

Sen. Clifton Batchelder of Omaha, who was out of the chamber when the vote was taken, announced that he also would have opposed moving the bill. Batchelder earlier this week failed in an effort to kill the bill.

Bauer said he does not oppose any specific program in the bill, but recorded his opposition to the fact that there was no floor discussion on projects other than those for the university and the state colleges.

Upon the suggestion of Pedersen, Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff offered the motion to advance after efforts to cut funds for those institutions had been soundly defeated.

The bill received eight hours of debate on the floor this week.

Carpenter announced that an amendment providing more flexibility to state agencies in the expenditure of their construction funds will be offered when LB890 reaches select file.

Centered on NU

Most of Wednesday's debate centered on the university.

Batchelder said NU was asking "too much" in construction funds proposed in LB890, and had relayed its desires to the Budget Committee "through our ambassador to the Court of Chancellor Hardin, Senator Gerdes."

Batchelder suggested that the Legislature "give them a figure which will make them squeal a bit."

Gerdes replied that NU had sought $73.4 million in construction funds over the next four years, a request which has already been cut some $25 million.

"The university is going to expand in spite of this body," Carpenter declared. Lawmakers, he noted, should realize that "there is something more worthwhile than money."

Pedersen declared that he will "stand against the tide of spending."

Klaver charged that certain senators are involved in "an all-out effort to spend so much money that we will have to adopt a sales or income tax."

Budget Chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings told senators that he has "never been so frustrated in attempting to get facts and answers" at this session's budget hearings.

As a result, he said, the Legislature is faced with the task of budgeting on the basis of limited information.

As the debate waxed hot and heavy, Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha took the floor to announce:

"As a little kid, I always wanted to be a member of a circus. I am getting the feeling that I have finally reached my goal."

Here is how state senators voted on LB890:

Against advancing (12): Bauer, Brauer, Klaver, Mahoney, Moylan, Nore, Paine, Payne, Pedersen, Skarda, Wylie.

SEATO Splits On Stopping Red Effort

London (AP)—Ministers of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization failed Wednesday to agree on how to defeat the Communist effort to take over South Viet Nam.

A majority of the eight-nation alliance — led by the United States and Britain — backed President Johnson's call for sterner military action "until the Communist aggression is brought to an end."

But Pakistan, following France's neutralist line, rejected that majority position. Instead Foreign Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto said Pakistan was concerned over consequences of continuance of the conflict and voiced the hope determined efforts will also be made "to restore peace in that area through negotiations on the basis of the existing Geneva agreements."

Essential Difference
Behind the split lay this essential difference:

Pakistan, which has been in recent touch with Red Chinese and Russian rulers, thinks now is the time to negotiate. The United States and its supporters want meaningful peace talks, but not as a cover for further Red advances in Southeast Asia.

A communique winding up the alliance's three-day annual conference sought to present the best possible face on the situation by avoiding all direct reference to the clash of views.

Split Obvious
But it failed to conceal the split.

France's observer, Ambassador Achille Clarac, specifically declared that President Charles de Gaulle's government "does not consider itself to be committed" by the communique.

And Bhutto carried his disension beyond the Viet Nam issue.

He refused to associate Pakistan with a general SEATO expression of grave concern about "Indonesia's confrontation of Malaysia," which the majority called a serious threat to peace in Southeast Asia.

The conference ended then with the biggest continental European and the biggest Asian member of the alliance completely out of step with the majority—the United States, Britain, Thailand, New Zealand, Thailand and the Philippines.

Legislators To Eye Topless, Bottomless Suits

Sacramento, Calif. (AP)—Assemblymen told that shows featuring young ladies in topless or bottomless bathing suits are a menace to morals, have decided to study the subject.

On split voice votes, the Assembly's Criminal Procedure Committee killed three bills aimed at prohibiting the spreading California topless bathing suit shows.

At one point in the three-hour hearing before an audience of about 200 that appeared solidly in favor of the measures, the woman mayor of Pico Rivera, Ruth Bonnell, talked of local attempts to close down topless shows.

Committee Cuts Local Restriction

Washington (UPI)—The House Judiciary Committee Wednesday cut from President Johnson's voting rights bill a requirement that would be Negro voters first try to register through local officials before appealing to federal examiners.

The vote was close—16 to 14—but Chairman Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., said the majority felt the original requirement would only force Negroes to undergo more of the harassment that brought about appointment of federal voting examiners in the first place.

The Judiciary Committee worked for the fourth day in closed session in hopes of completing its own draft of a voting rights bill by Thursday.

Debate continued in the Senate with indications of a showdown vote late Thursday on a pending amendment by Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., that would scuttle the heart of the bipartisan bill.

Sen. John J. Sparkman, D-Ala., told the Senate he agreed with the bill's basic premise of "providing the right to vote to all qualified citizens." But he charged that the bill was "punitive, sectional legislation" that would change "the spirit as well as the letter of our form of government."

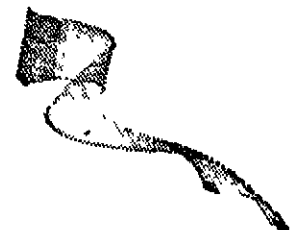

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., and other Senate leaders worked out an agreement to bring Ervin's amendment to a vote Thursday afternoon if President Johnson's special $700 million defense request is disposed of by then.

Senate debate would begin Friday on the amendment by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., which would both ban poll taxes by statute and order an immediate court test of poll tax laws by the attorney general.

Russian Shot At Mars Failure, Physicist Says

Chicago (UPI) — A top Soviet physicist revealed Wednesday that Russia's latest and most ambitious shot at the planet Mars had failed.

Gennadiy Skuridin, leader of a six-man Russian delegation attending a U.S. space exploration conference, also said the Soviets "don't consider a flight to land men on the moon a major space program."

The gray-haired, soft-spoken Russian sprung the double-barreled surprise during a rare conference with U.S. newsmen shortly before he and his five companions were to address some 500 American scientists and technicians at the three-day post-Apollo exploration meeting.

Failure of the Russian rocket shot known as Zond 2 gives the United States a clear shot at a major victory in space— 2 have stopped." Skuridin said.

While U.S. scientists confidently planned for the day when trucks, taxis and perhaps even flying machines shaped like metallic bugs would explore the lunar surface, the Russians fended off most questions about their own moon exploration projects.

Skuridin's comment that man's lunar landings are not a "major" program raised some eyebrows. But, he added, "our scientists are studying flights to the moon. We are not promising a specific date, and we are not about to do so."

America's own Project Apollo, a $20 billion "national goal" venture, calls for landing two astronauts on the moon by 1970.

While U.S. scientists confidently planned for the day when trucks, taxis and perhaps even flying machines shaped like metallic bugs would explore the lunar surface, the Russians fended off most questions about their own moon exploration projects.

Skuridin's comment that

27 Of 48 On Board Airliner Die In Canary Islands Crash

Santa Cruz de Tenerife, Canary Islands (AP)—A Spanish Iberia airliner crashed here Wednesday night, killing 27 persons, including 13 foreigners, officials of the airline said Thursday.

Twenty-one other persons were reported to have survived the crash.

A Spanish woman survivor was quoted by hospital attendants as saying:

"All was horrible. We were wrapped in fog when we were asked to fasten our belts because we were about to land. Seconds later a tremendous impact against the ground followed.

Plane Broke

"The plane broke and I think all of us who escaped alive lost consciousness. I have no idea what followed and how we were removed from the debris of the aircraft."

Iberia officials in Madrid said the passengers included some foreigners, but that they were not immediately able to say how many and their nationalities.

They said some survivors were reported in a grave condition, but most of them were said to have suffered fractures of arms and legs.

They said the four-engine plane, a Super-Constellation, ran off the runway, broke in two and caught fire.

Quick Action

"The survivors were rescued precisely because the plane broke and because rescue parties acted very quickly," they added.

Officials said no passenger list would be made available "until we have definitely established who died and who survived in the crash."

Among the survivors were stewardess M. Perez Vigo and air host Manuel Rueda, both believed in a critical condition.

The airliner was "La Pinta," named after one of the three ships of Christopher Columbus. It had been used on the Madrid-New York flights.

HEAD REFINER

Robert O. Anderson, 48, New Mexico petroleum executive, rancher and civic leader, was elected chairman of the board of directors and chief executive officer of the Atlantic Refining Co.

Final Vatican Drafts

Vatican City (AP)—The coordinating commission of the Vatican Ecumenical Council will examine final drafts of reworked council topics here May 11-12 before sending them to Roman Catholic bishops throughout the world. The fourth and final council session opens in September.

Clark Denies Decisions Cause Crime Increase

Dallas (AP)—Associate Supreme Court Justice Tom C. Clark denied Wednesday claims by some law enforcement agencies that recent high court rulings have caused an increase in the U.S. crime rate.

Justice Clark, here for a luncheon address, said some people believe the Supreme of the criminal.

He told reporters the court has been criticized for rulings on search and seizure in criminal cases.

Extended Only

"But we have merely extended to the states the rule of search and seizure which has been applied against federal law enforcement agencies under the 4th Amendment of the Constitution since the early 1900s," the former Dallas attorney said. He said the FBI has long been able to function effectively under this application of the law.

The Supreme Court has held that evidence gathered against a defendant under illegal search and seizure practices cannot be introduced into evidence or into court against him.

son could get relief from increased population, of such practices after law enforcement invasion of his home would be through damage suits," Justice Clark said.

Clark said an ever-increasing case load is coming before the high court.

"There are three times as many cases on our docket as we had 15 years ago," he said.

Justice Clark said many rulings which may appear out of line with the times result because cases reaching the court may be three years old. The public is far ahead of the court's decisions," he said.

Rainmaker Performs Magic Act

Inch Moisture

Broken Bow (UPI)—The wind blew, lightning danced across the sky, but Broken Bow did not get any rain Wednesday.

When the electrical storm has passed over, the sky was clear, the sun resumed its withering glare and the rangeland was just as dry as ever.

Enter Chief Kills in Sight—the rainmaker.

Kills in Sight, chief of the Sioux Indian tribe at South Dakota's Rosebud Indian Reservation, had been brought here to try to bring rain to the surrounding ranching country. A combination of an unusually dry winter and little spring rain caused the townspeople to try a "rainmaker" as a last resort.

Kills in Sight, who goes by the first name of George, was called upon to use his ancient tribal magic after the chief of the Shoshone nation turned down a request for his services. Kills in Sight is the grandson of Chief Hollow Horn Bear, former head of the Sioux nation.

Three hundred townspeople, their ranks thinned because of a raging forest fire a few miles away, turned out to see Kills in Sight perform his wonders in the city square under a clear blue sky.

Dressed in the traditional garb of his ancestors, Kills in Sight directed an Army National Guard unit in the firing of three rounds of blank Howitzer shells—just to get things started.

He then mounted a platform, turned eyes to the heavens, and chanted an ancient Sioux prayer.

Sioux Rain Dance
Following the brief orison, Kills in Sight dropped from the platform to the ground, to finish his efforts with a Sioux rain dance.

The chief promised Broken Bow that it would have "one inch of rain within 24 hours."

"I tried real hard, so you'll probably get two," he said.

The chief earlier had admitted he "did some practicing" Tuesday night, thus accounting for heavy rain that fell south of here during the evening.

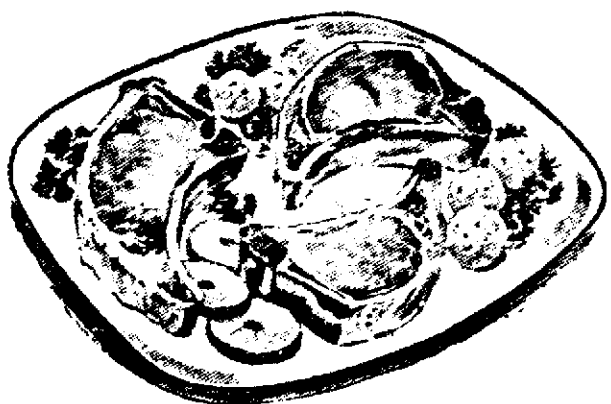

Broken Bow bank president T. T. Varney Jr. got the idea of hiring the rainmaker and the Chamber of Commerce lent its name to the stunt.

Some difficulty was encountered when Varney was unable to convince the head of the Shoshone Indian nation to do his tribe's rainmaking ritual. Chief Herman St. Clair of the Lander, Wyo., Indian Reservation merely laughed at the idea, and Varney was faced with the possibility of having to settle for a medicine man rather than a chief.

At the last minute, however, Chief Kills in Sight consented to help out the central Nebraska community.

No price tag was revealed, but it was understood the chief wouldn't get paid unless the Sandhills community got some rain.

Meanwhile, Chief Kills in Sight may have run into some trouble with his own people. While he was praying for rain in Nebraska, a fire destroyed several acres of grassland on his own reservation.

New Plan For Flight Bags Asked

Washington (UPI)—American Airlines Wednesday proposed a new luggage allowance system based on the number of bags carried by a passenger instead of on weight.

American, in a formal request to the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB), said it would scrap the present 40-pound limit for luggage carried free. Its new plan would let a passenger carry, without charge, one large bag plus one medium-sized bag and one or more "carry-on" bags such as briefcases or small overnight cases.

American said its new system would reduce to less than five per cent the number of passengers paying excess baggage charges. Currently, about 13% of air travelers pay such charges.

Original Proposal

In August, 1964, American originally proposed elimination of excess baggage charges and all weight limitations—with a $1 increase in the price of every ticket compensating for the loss of revenue.

The CAB authorized the airlines to discuss this and other proposals in hopes that the industry might unanimously agree on a new baggage system. In authorizing the discussions, the CAB temporarily shelved a planned investigation of the baggage situation.

In its application filed Wednesday, American noted that the industry discussions had failed to produce agreement thus far. The airline said it was reluctant "to take unilateral action" but added:

New Approach

"We believe so strongly in the need for a new approach to the problem of excess baggage that we are willing to put our proposal into effect on an experimental basis even without unanimous agreement by all carriers."

American attached these conditions to its plan:

—The loss in excess baggage revenue from the liberalized allowance should be offset by a 50-cent increase in domestic first class fares and a 20-cent boost in coach fares.

—A sufficient number of other airlines also must adopt the proposal "to make it practical from an operational standpoint."

American's proposal specified that the one large bag carried free, regardless of weight, could have dimensions up to 30 by 22 by 10 inches. The medium-sized bag would be up to 21 by 13 by 9 inches. The free carry-on luggage would be limited to the combined dimensions of the medium bags.

Lower Ticket Price Urged By Exhibitors

New York (AP)—International exhibitors at the World's Fair have drafted a strong letter calling on President Robert Moses to reduce fair admission rates. Rejection of the demand, they say, could lead to a withdrawal of one or more foreign exhibits.

The fair increased admission rates from $2.00 to $2.50 this year, and exhibitors say this has decreased attendance.

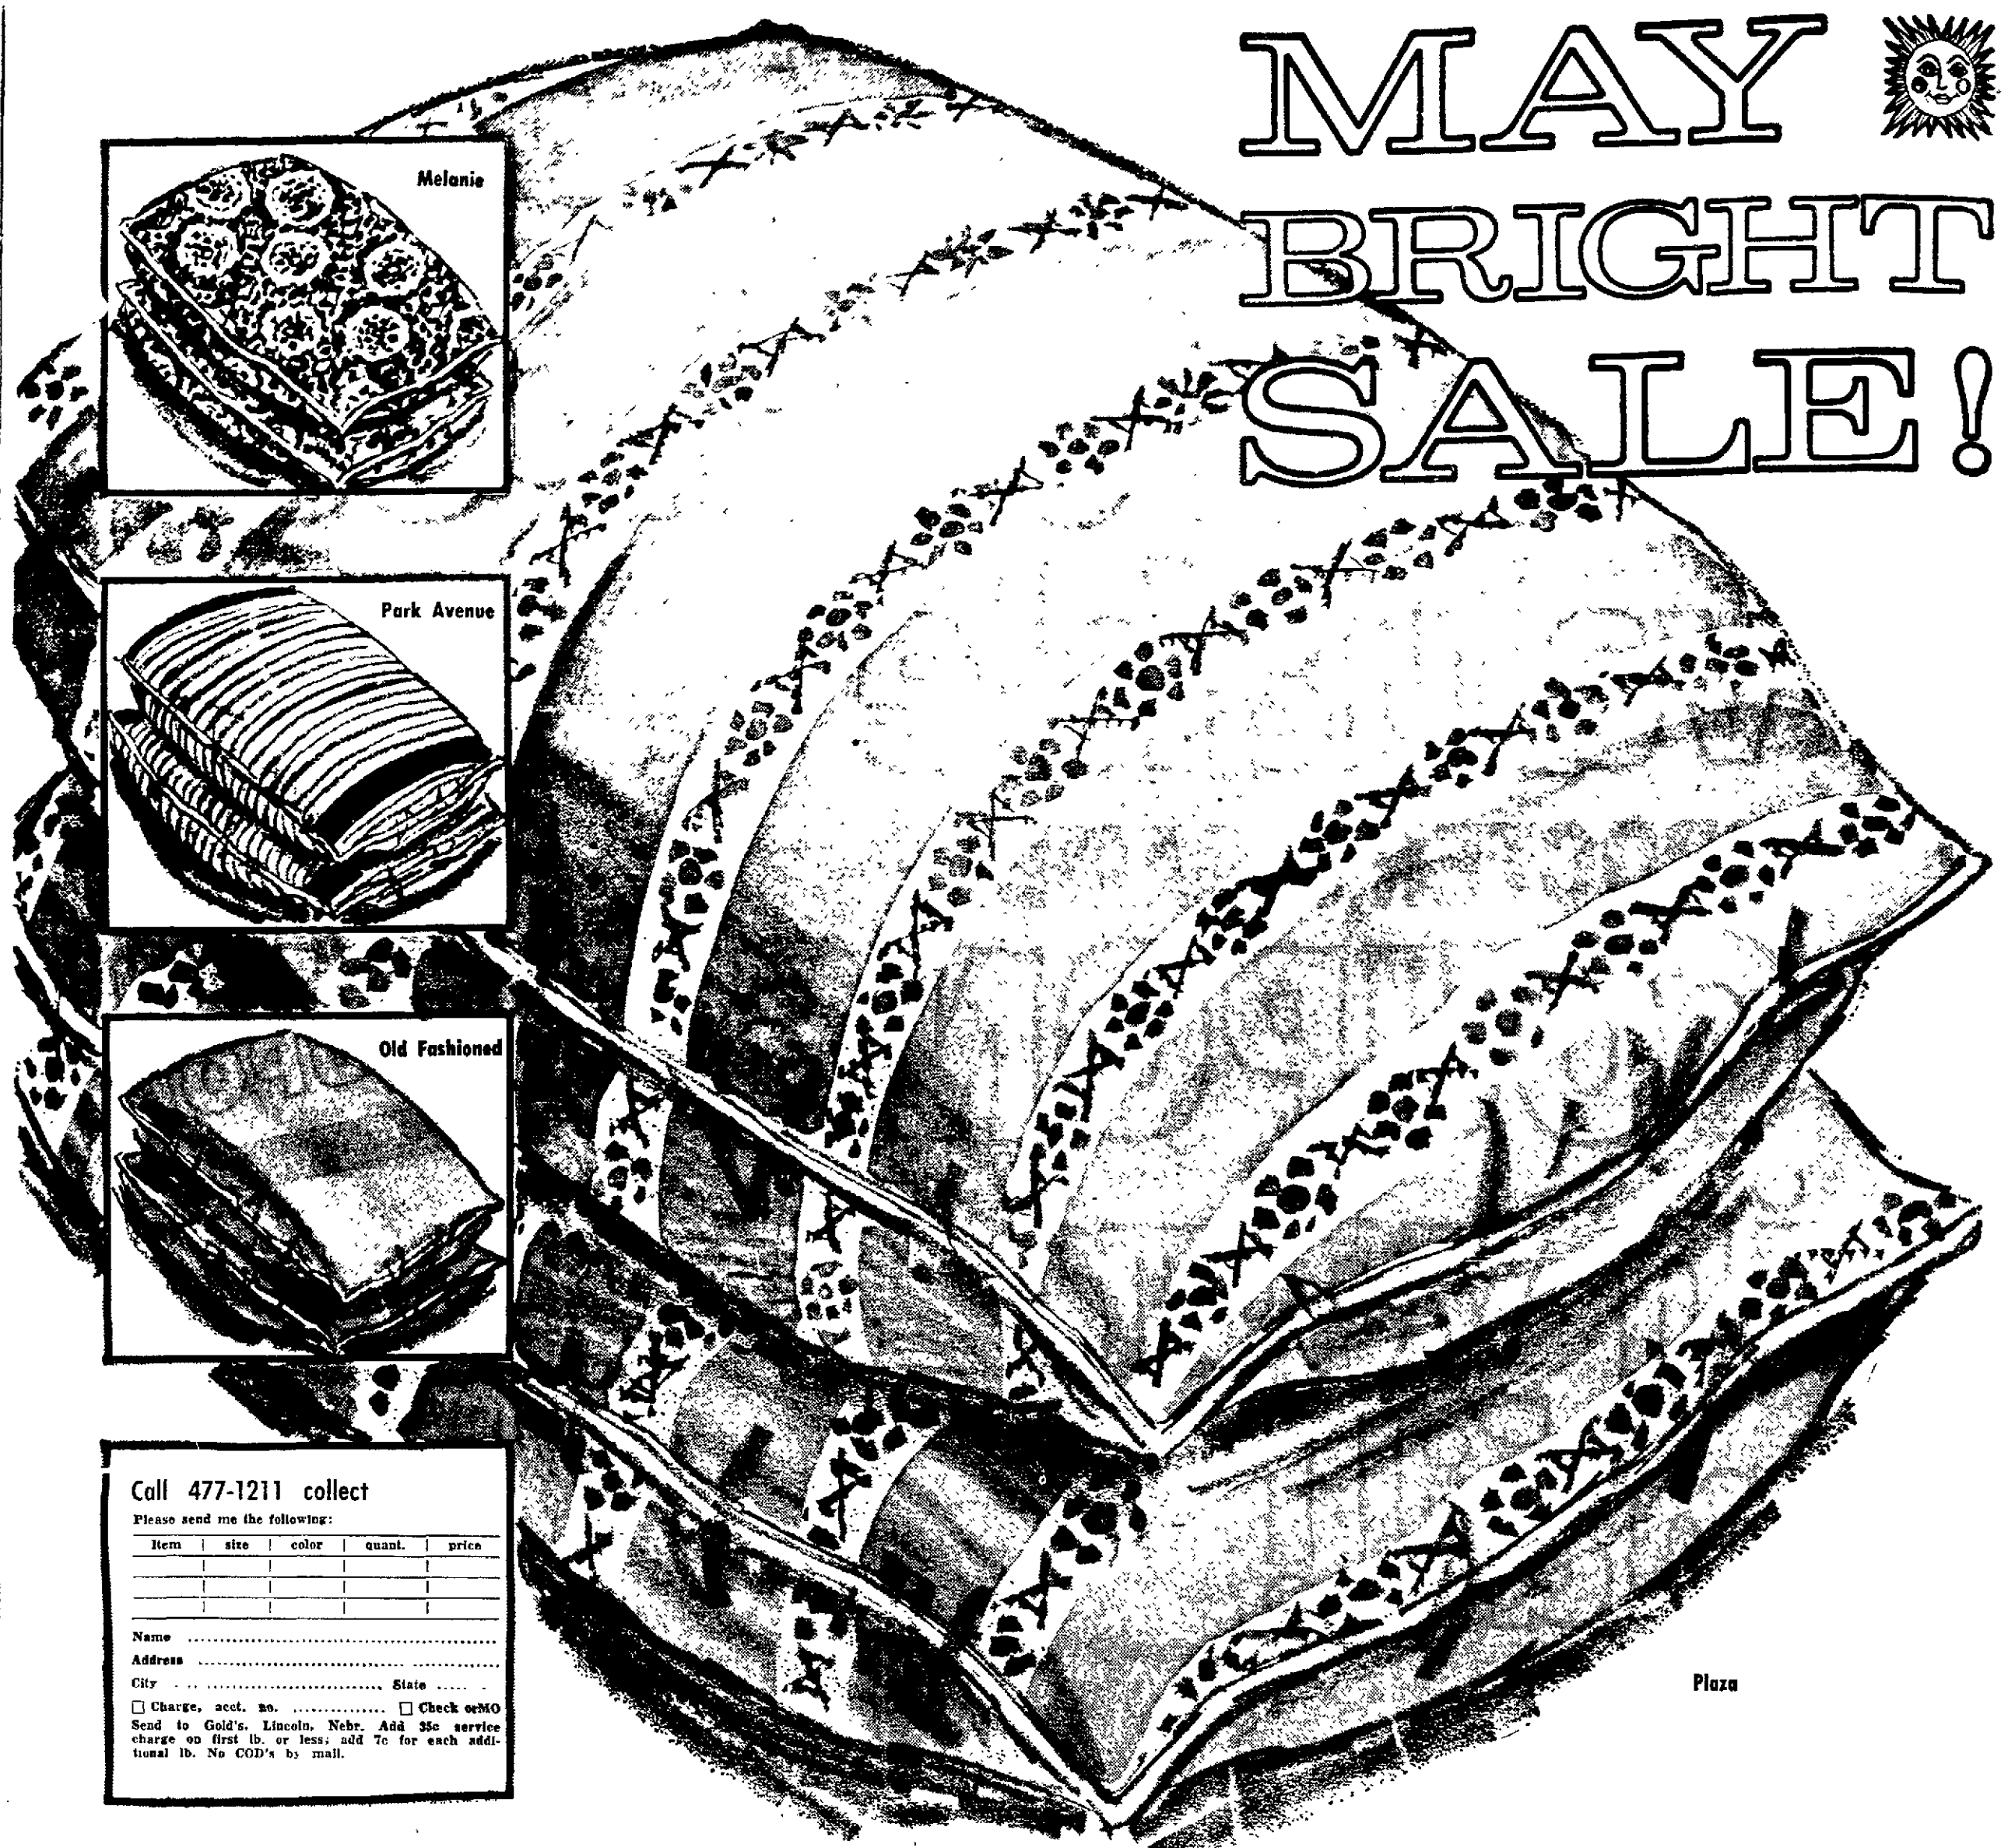

Sources close to the Association of International Exhibitors told the Associated Press Wednesday that it is "absolutely clear that something must be done to bring down prices and increase attendance."

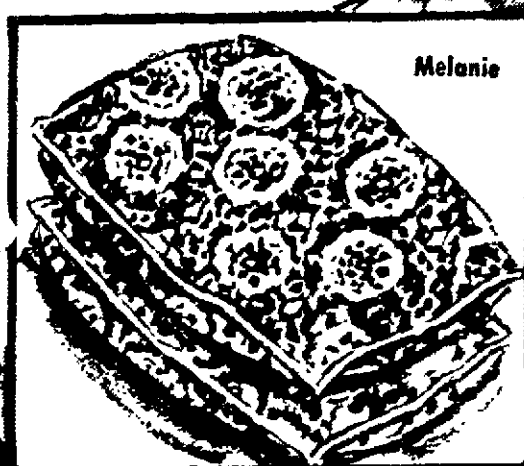

The position of the international exhibitors is contained in a letter signed by representatives for the Swedish, African, Indian, Irish and Philippine pavilions.

They ask Moses to reduce fair admissions to $2.00 on weekdays before 5 p.m. and $1 after 5 p.m.

Murder Rate Down By 40% Since 1930s

... SERIOUS ASSAULTS UP 50%

Washington (UPI) — FBI crime statisticians have compiled some fascinating facts and figures about murder.

They contradict many popular beliefs. For example, nearly everyone "knows" that the murder rate has gone up sharply in U.S. cities in recent years. But FBI figures show just the opposite. The murder rate has declined by 40% since the 1930s.

What has gone up 50% is the serious assault rate. FBI analysts conclude that the lower murder rate may be the result of quicker and better medical care.

Stays Assault Statistic

"The victim remains an assault statistic rather than becoming a murder statistic," says an FBI official.

The FBI figures also shed light on such interesting questions as where, when, by whom and by what you're most likely to be murdered.

If you live in a city of more than 250,000, you're twice as likely to become a murder victim as a person who lives in a rural area, small town or suburb.

December Worst Month

Over-all, summer is the worst season for murder. But the peak monthly rate almost invariably occurs in December. This may have something to do with the approach of Christmas, which leads to an unusually large number of family rows and holdups.

Only about 12% of all deliberate killings are so-called "felony murders — that is, those committed by robbers, sex offenders or other felons. The vast majority of killings take place as a result of personal animosity between people who are relatives or acquaintances.

Nearly a third of all willful homicides take place within a family unit. Husbands kill wives slightly more often than wives kill husbands. Parents kill children three times as often as children kill parents.

Lovers' Quarrels

In killings outside the family, lovers' quarrels are involved in 17%, "drinking situations" in 14%, quarrels over money in five per cent, and revenge is the motive in four per cent.

"The easy accessibility of firearms and the lethal nature of a gun are clearly apparent in the murder statistics," says an FBI official.

Guns are used in 56% of all willful killings, knives in 23%, blunt objects in six per cent. The remaining 15% involve poison, vehicles, strangling and a wide variety of other techniques.

Army Bounces Drunken Glutton

Kaiserslautern, Germany (UPI)—The U.S. Army has given an undesirable discharge to a goat.

Billy Bravo, mascot of the 3rd Missile Battalion's Battery B, simply ate—and drank—too much.

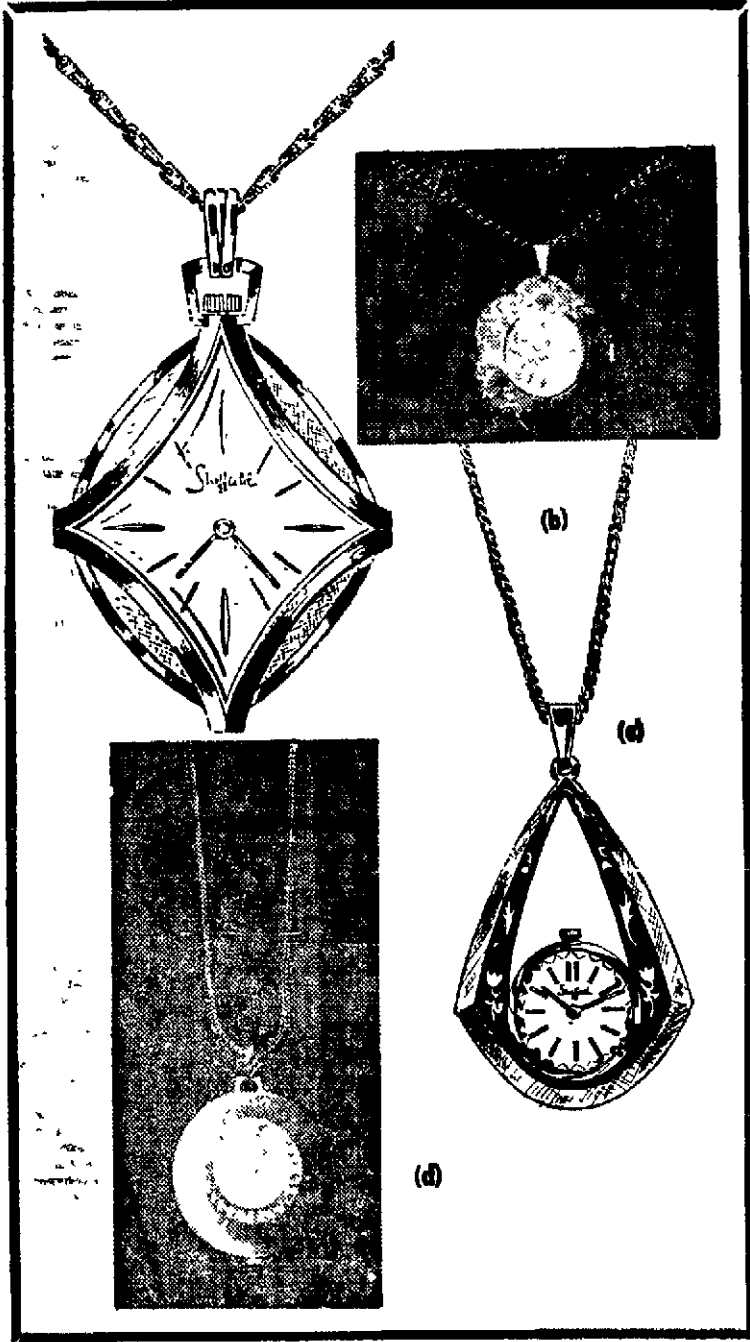

The trouble began during Billy's first day on the job four years ago when he chewed up a telephone wire and butted an official visitor.

Billy went on to nibble at battery rations, eat the windshield wipers on the battery commander's automobile and even became "drunk and disorderly" after getting at a supply of beer.

—RUSSELL—
LBJ Backed On Actions In Dominica
RAIDING NORTH

Washington (AP)—Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) said Wednesday he supports President Johnson's Dominican Republic actions but believes the bombing of North Viet Nam "will not have much effect one way or the other" on the war there.

And Russell, who heads the Senate Armed Services Committee and is a close friend of Johnson, said in a telephone interview from his Winder, Ga., home he expects to return to the Senate this month.

He has been absent since Feb. 2 when he was stricken so severely with bronchitis and emphysema, a lung ailment, that a tracheotomy operation was performed at Walter Reed Army Hospital here to aid him in breathing. He was released from the Hospital March 9 and reported that he now is "feeling fine."

Reluctant To Comment
Commenting on a range of subjects in his first interview since he was stricken, Russell —Showed reluctance to comment on the administration's course in Viet Nam. His position has been that the United States never should have become involved there.

—Said the President "couldn't do anything else" but send troops into the Dominican Republic.

—Predicted quick congressional approval of a $700-million boost in defense funds asked by Johnson, adding: "He'll get all the money he has asked Congress for. While there may be some divergence of opinion, this has become a matter of national prestige and even some of those who don't agree with the president's course will vote for it."

Assails Rights Bill
—Assailed the administration's Negro voting rights bill, but expressed doubt he will be back in Washington in time to vote against it.

—Accused Senate liberals of "trying to carry water on both shoulders" by delaying—until after their planned filibuster against a legislative reapportionment amendment—their effort to lower the present two-thirds majority vote requirement to cut off debate.

Russell, who has been consulted in frequent telephone calls by Johnson, said he sees no present hope for ending the Viet Nam conflict.

"Anybody who could find us a way out of that could be president," he said.

Russell said he is disturbed that the Organization of American States has not moved more quickly to provide military support for the United States' peacekeeping forces in Santo Domingo.

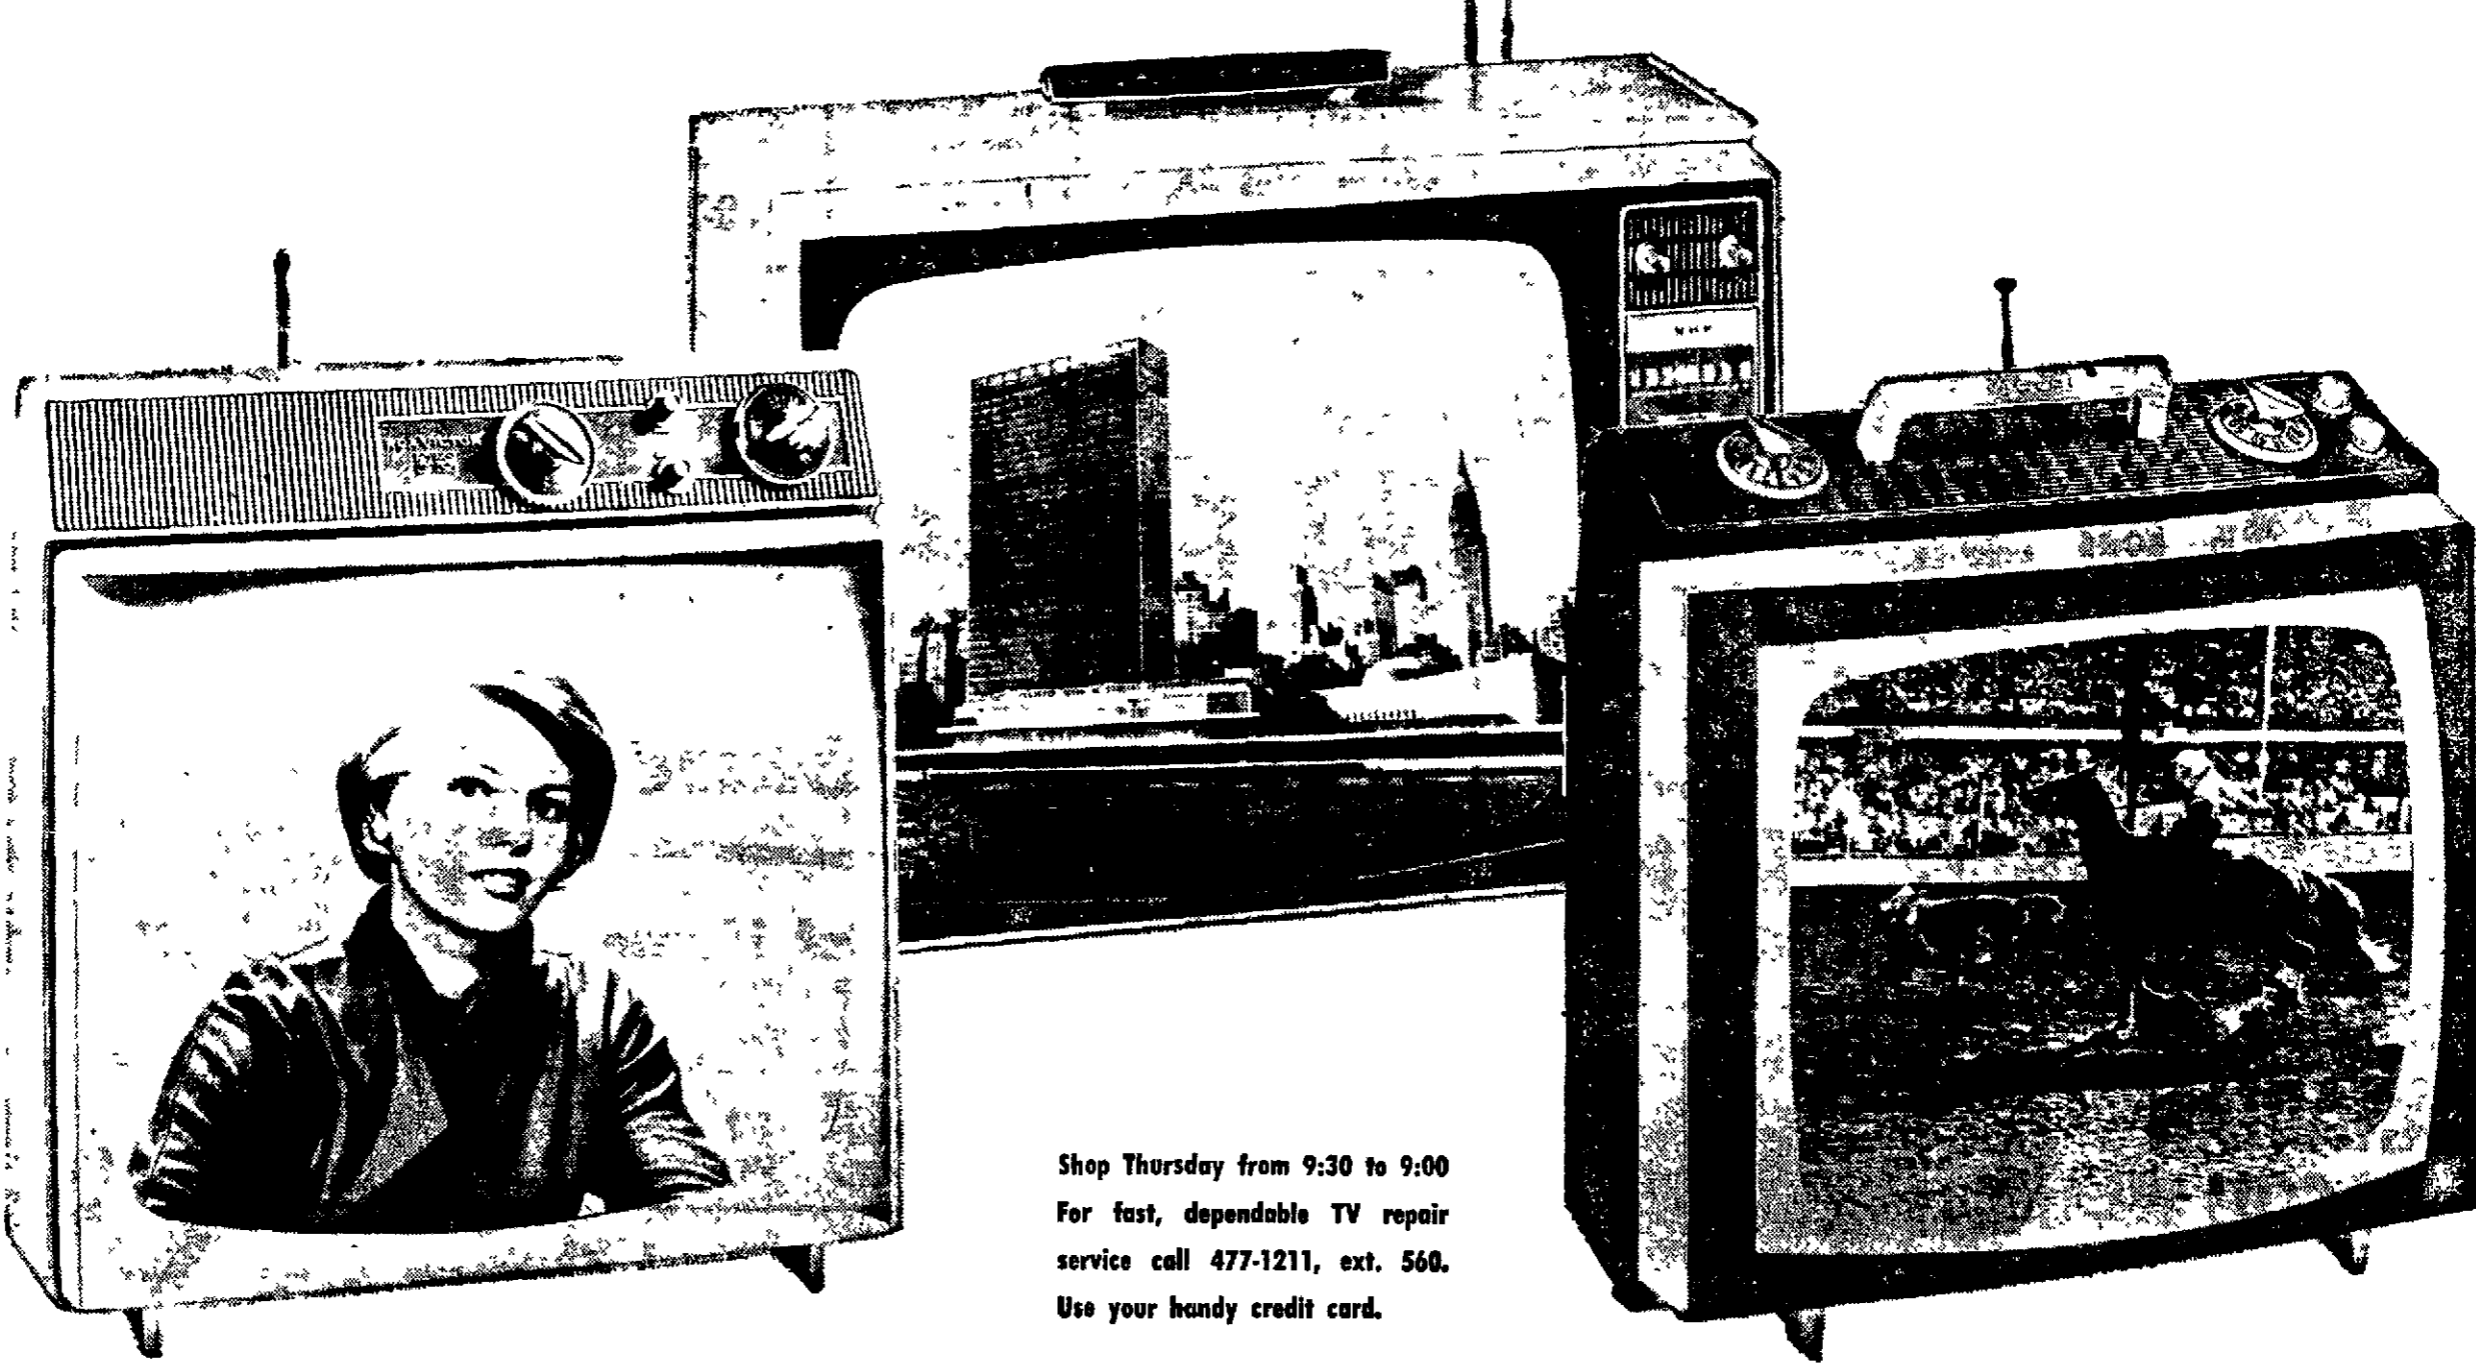

The Georgia senator, who has quarterbacked the Southern opposition to civil rights bills, has been in consultation with those who are fighting against the voting rights measure.

"I'm against this bill because it is unconstitutional and it is unneeded," he said. "Certainly it is not needed in Georgia."

Senate leaders put off a planned March showdown on proposals to change the anti-filibuster rule until Russell's return.

Watershed Grass Study Results Told

Seeding marginally-productive cropland to permanent vegetation can reduce runoff up to 93%, according to the results of studies conducted at watersheds in the Nebraska area of the Central Great Plains.

To get research data, USDA Agricultural Research Service investigators, working in conjunction with the NU Agronomy Department seeded adapted prairie grasses on watersheds near Hastings that had been continuously cultivated for 50 years.

The watersheds were first seeded to grain sorghum. In the fall, after frost had killed the sorghum, a grass mixture was planted without further ground preparation. The grass mixture consisted of western wheatgrass, big bluestem, little bluestem, blue grama, side oats grama, switchgrass, and Indian grass. The perennial grasses, sorghum residue, and volunteer annual plants provided almost complete soil cover.

For several years, conservationists have recommended reseeding marginally-productive cropland to perennial prairie grasses, but little experimental evidence was available as to how this would affect the surface runoff and soil loss.

In only two years of study at the Hastings watershed, runoff was reduced to .026 inch annually—from an average of 3.70 during the period 1941-1954, when the watersheds were in cultivation.

'Harbor Lights' Theme Of Peru 1965 May Fete

Peru — Music and dancing for the 1965 May Fete at Peru State College Friday evening will be presented in the College Gymnasium in a setting inspired by the theme of "Harbor Lights."

Scheduled for 7 p.m., the event will begin with the coronation of the May Fete queen and king, seniors Jan Beemer, Bedford, Iowa, and Vincent Sabatinelli, Southbridge, Mass.

Class representatives will serve as attendants: — Seniors — Marilyn Gonnerman, Waco, and Gary Schmucker, Brock; Juniors — Marilyn Masters, Nebraska City, and Jack Rinne, Burchard; Sophomores — Cecilia Evangelist, Newark, N.Y., and Bill Rinne, Burchard; Freshmen — Julie Harrison, Wood River, Ill., and James Nash, Granite City, Ill.

Flower girls and crown bearers are kindergarteners Katie Bohlken, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bohlken, Peru, and Julie Ebner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Ebner, Peru; Linda Sayer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Sayer, Peru, and Dwight Winingier, son of Dr. and Mrs. Darrell Winingier, Peru.

Ladies-in-waiting for the coronation will be freshmen: Wanda Anderson, Talmage; Joan Spriek, Louisville; Diane Morrison, Beatrice; Carol Chandler, Shubert; Mary Ann Sharp, Plattsmouth; Melanie Florea, Manhattan Beach, Calif. Heralds will be Alice Massoth, Manley, and Carol Hawley, Brock.

Decision In ETV Dispute Appealed

The Hamilton County Telephone Co. of Aurora Wednesday appealed a case involving an educational television system dispute to the State Supreme Court.

The action was taken after the State Railway Commission Friday denied Hamilton's motion for a second hearing on the charges lodged against two telephone companies by the Aurora firm.

The Railway Commission in March dismissed Hamilton's charges against the Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. of Omaha and the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co. in connection with a contract to construct facilities and provide service for the state ETV network now under development.

The Aurora firm charged that Northwestern Bell and the Lincoln company violated antitrust laws and Railway Commission regulations in bidding for the contract.

The State ETV Commission in June of last year accepted the joint bid of the Lincoln and Omaha companies, rejecting a bid submitted by Hamilton. The contract calls for providing audio and visual to interconnect the seven proposed stations of circuits to interconnect the ETV network.

Originally the Railway Commission on a 3-2 vote decided to accept jurisdiction in the case and hold a hearing on the charges, but it then reversed itself on a 3-2 vote and dismissed the charges.

Officials for the state and the Omaha and Lincoln companies have charged that the dispute is holding up development of the statewide ETV system.

Court Considers Cursing Case

A case involving the conviction of a Wilber woman on a charge she cursed at an off-duty Wilber city police officer and thus disturbed the peace was argued before the State Supreme Court Wednesday.

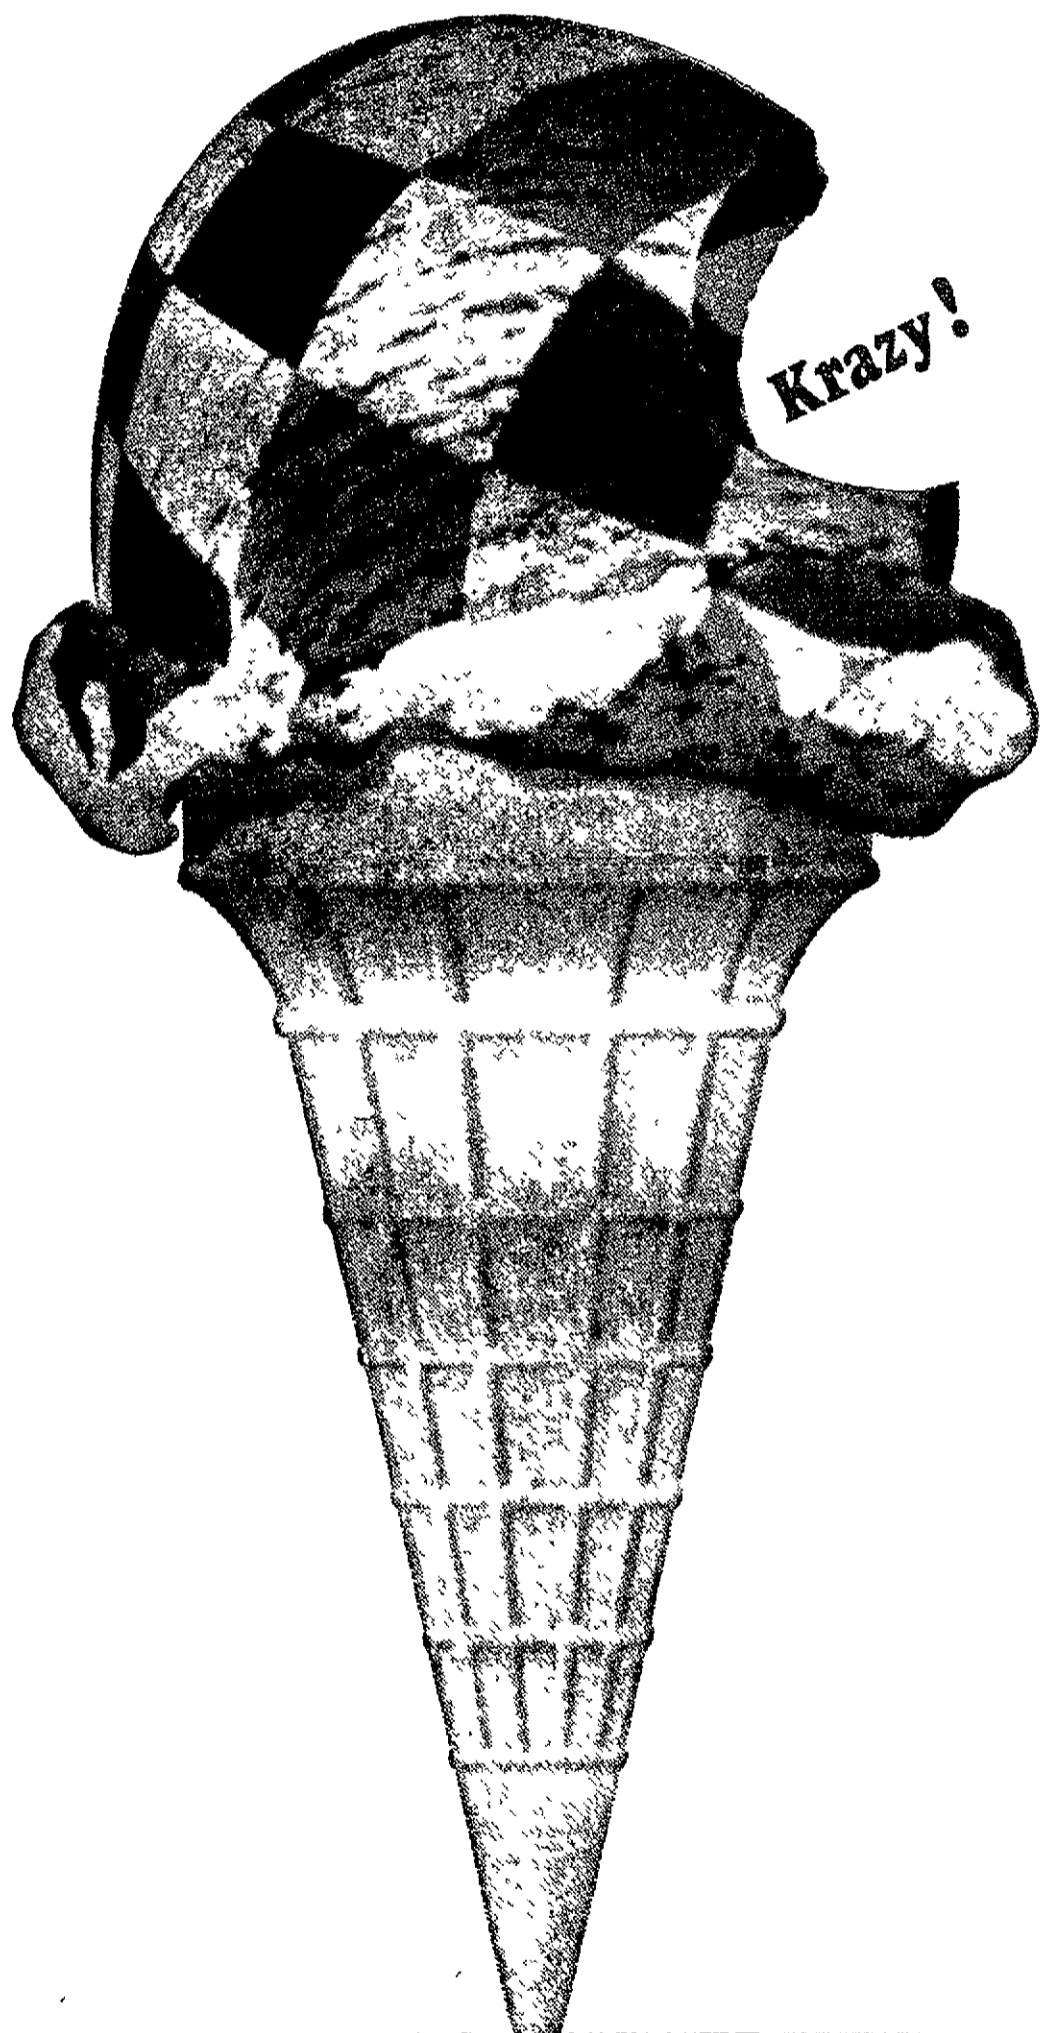

Any person has the right not to be cursed at and sworn at, at his own home," said Attorney Bernard J. Ach, representing the city of Wilber.

Attorney Jack Craven, representing the woman, Mrs. Marguerite I. Sukovaty, contended evidence presented at the trial was not sufficient to prove she was guilty. He said the jury had been improperly instructed.

Mrs. Sukovaty was convicted by a Saline County District Court jury of violent, tumultuous and disorderly conduct on Sept. 8, 1963, in violation of a Wilber city ordinance.

Disturbed Play Out Troubles

New York (AP)—The way to a disturbed child's hidden heart may be through a wardrobe of costumes that help him play the parts of baby, parent, witch, devil, clown, skeleton—or even Superman.

A New Orleans psychiatrist told Wednesday of three youngsters who used the costumes to "play out" the fantasies, feelings and hurtful past situations that haunted their young lives.

It allowed the therapist to communicate with the feelings of the child on whatever level the child wanted to present them, explained Dr. Irwin M. Marcus.

"By changing roles, children who were passive victims can become active aggressors," Marcus told a meeting of the American Psychiatric Association. "Their feelings of painful helplessness can be re-experienced with a happier, stronger and successful conclusion."

Marked Confusion

He told of one case, an almost-10-year-old boy named Evan, who was referred to him as a slow learner, nearly two years behind in school, apparently incapable of following instructions, with marked displays of confusion.

Evan's teachers complained of his day-dreaming and inability to concentrate. He was effeminate in his mannerisms and submissive to his fraternal twin brother. He lied, stole and lied again.

Evan's mother had been hospitalized several years earlier for mental problems. His brother, as well as he, showed a disorganization in their concept of themselves. Evan seemed to show "sadness and a feeling of loneliness and fears that his mother would kill him."

Mother's Costume

Evan began his therapy by choosing the mother's costume and playing the role of teacher—and at times his teacher's husband. He would prepare family meals, give his children money for food, teach and assure the make-believe children they would pass.

But gradually—as weeks passed—the plot resembled a detective story. He reported that a woman was murdered because she murdered her children. But, he reported, a good woman who punished the bad mother was going to be punished in turn by the police.

He later switched to the role of the ghost of the bad mother, seeking revenge, finally defeated by the policeman-therapist. Through this was also the fantasy of being starved and abandoned in the cold, punished by his mother for his murderous feelings toward her, but feeling protected by the therapist.

Loving Couple

Then the plot shifted to a loving couple, he playing the wife, then a new baby, curled into the birth position, making goo-goo sounds, rocking and sucking his thumb.

When he came out of this episode, he was exuberant, smiled happily, and seemed much more relaxed. For a while he would shift back and forth between a number of roles, also playing a cruel mother who hated her baby whom he named after his brother.

Then he became a sort of comic-book explorer, than an all-powerful queen.

After several months of therapy, he became more aggressive in school, even defended himself in a fight with another boy. His effeminate behavior diminished. He began to take part in organized boy's games, communicated better, accepted discipline and frustration, improved in his learning ability. Treatment was terminated after more than a year and a half of therapy.

Dying Mother's Wish Unites Two Big Families

Lombard, Ill. — Before Jean Adrian, a widow, died in January in Albuquerque, N.M., she asked that her seven children not be separated.

Her brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Randolph, have respected that wish by taking the Adrian children into their Lombard home—even though they have eight children.

It's not easy having 15 youngsters under one roof, but Mrs. Randolph, 32, says she has faith "that all will work out somehow."

"Really, I've got a rotten German temper. But since all this happened, I don't get cited any more."

One of the main problems is space. The Randolphs—she is a Brink's guard—live in an eight-room house in this suburb of Chicago but are trying to buy a farmhouse near Hillside, another Chicago suburb.

The farmhouse on seven acres has nine bedrooms and three bathrooms. Randolph has an option and is hoping to obtain a mortgage for the $30,000 property.

The Randolph children are Kris, 3; David, 5; Jeffrey, 6; Kim, 8; Holly, 10; Wendy, 11; Scott, 12; and Steven Jo, 14. The Adrian children are

Vern Anthony, 6; Timmy, 8; Christopher, 13; Mark, 15; Mary, 16; Stephen, 18; and Dawn, 19. Mary is attending the University of New Mexico now and will join the family in June.

Dawn, a scholarship exchange student in Santiago, Chile, from the University of New Mexico has taken a leave of absence.

dolph's mother went to Albuquerque to take care of the Adrian children. But she also was stricken with cancer and returned to Lombard where she died April 3.

Mrs. Randolph had to give up her part time job as a waitress when the Adrian children arrived. The Randolphs receive a monthly $250 social security check to care for the Adrian children, but welfare authorities say the youngsters are not eligible for public aid. Mrs. Adrian left a $13,000 insurance policy in trust to educate her children.

The family consumes two gallons of milk a day and the children get baths on alternate nights.

"I shop for price, but the grocery bill has a little more than doubled," Mrs. Randolph said. "Of course, it's spring now—they're eating more."

Prof Recalls Happier College Era

... CAMPUS LIFE NOW AN ACADEMIC PRESSURE COOKER?

New Haven, Conn. (AP)—Col. Devane said "We had time for those days Devane said, was an air of lightheartedness, gaiety, privacy, leisure. They worked at their studies, but there wasn't that fierce competition."

Or is it all a grim academic pressure cooker that makes you feel like a soggy carrot? Recall for a moment the way it was. Dr. William C. Devane remembers the campus pace of another era, and he believes something has been lost.

Yale Graduate Devane was graduated with the Yale Class of 1920. He said Yale recently sent around a circular suggesting that professors ease the pressure on graduate students. The strain was getting too much, he said.

War Veteran Devane came to Yale as a veteran of World War I. "But we weren't bloodied by the war," he said. "The time and the tide made for literature. From 1913 to 1923 there was an artistic and literary renaissance at the major college."

Military Cadet Foreign Trips Are Canceled

Washington (UPI) — The call of foreign ports will go unanswered this summer for 1,700 U.S. military cadets, it was learned Wednesday night. Deputy Defense Secretary Cyrus Vance has banned foreign travel for cadets at Annapolis, West Point, Colorado Springs and other universities because of the "continuing unfavorable balance of payments situation."

As part of their summer training program, the cadets for years have traveled around the globe on military transports. But by eliminating foreign travel this summer, the Defense Department expects to save $950,000.

The action will also keep the cadets from spending U.S. dollars abroad. President Johnson has urged Americans to refrain from traveling outside the United States to help stem the flow of U.S. dollars and gold to foreign nations.

Affected by the order are 5,100 midshipmen at the U.S. Naval Academy and other universities with Navy ROTC programs. Five of 18 planned cruises have been canceled. The remaining trips will be to U.S. ports.

Also confined to the United States this summer will be 600 cadets from the Air Force Academy and 600 from the U.S. Military Academy. The Pentagon said the cadets were both juniors and seniors.

Cambodia Queen Back From Paris

Phnom Penh, Cambodia (AP)—Queen Mother Kossamak returned from a three-month trip to Paris for health reasons.

She was welcomed by several thousand cheering Cambodians.

Almost inevitably tribal wedding custom requires what African natives call "lobola," or bride-price. Before consenting to the engagement, the father of the prospective bride squeezes every possible cent out of the would-be-bridegroom.

Sputnik Tempo When Sputnik was launched in 1957, Devane said, "the tone and tempo of the society sharpened. There was more competition and it particularly affected the student."

"These are prosperous times," he went on. "There's a great push to go to college. Overcrowded institutions take away privacy and leisure. The students are working harder and more effectively, but it's a question whether they're getting as good an education."

Of the modern student Devane says: "I like boys to be boys and not be beatniks. They'll say it's freedom, but I like to see students well-dressed. I like to see girls at their best—they so seldom are. They're usually sloppy."

And in the classrooms, Devane believes, there is less good teaching, although he says this has not been a problem at Yale.

The world has gone through grave times since his idyllic school days, Devane says, and that's what makes the contemporary student so serious.

Today's world "isn't the same one that I grew up in," he said, "and I liked that other world."

Soviets' Biggest Show Expected On VE Day

Moscow (AP)—Soviet armed forces are rehearsing what is expected to be the biggest display of military hardware ever seen in Moscow.

The main piece is a rocket about 120 feet long to be shown for the first time in the military parade Sunday marking the 20th anniversary of VE Day—which will be celebrated elsewhere on Saturday, May 8.

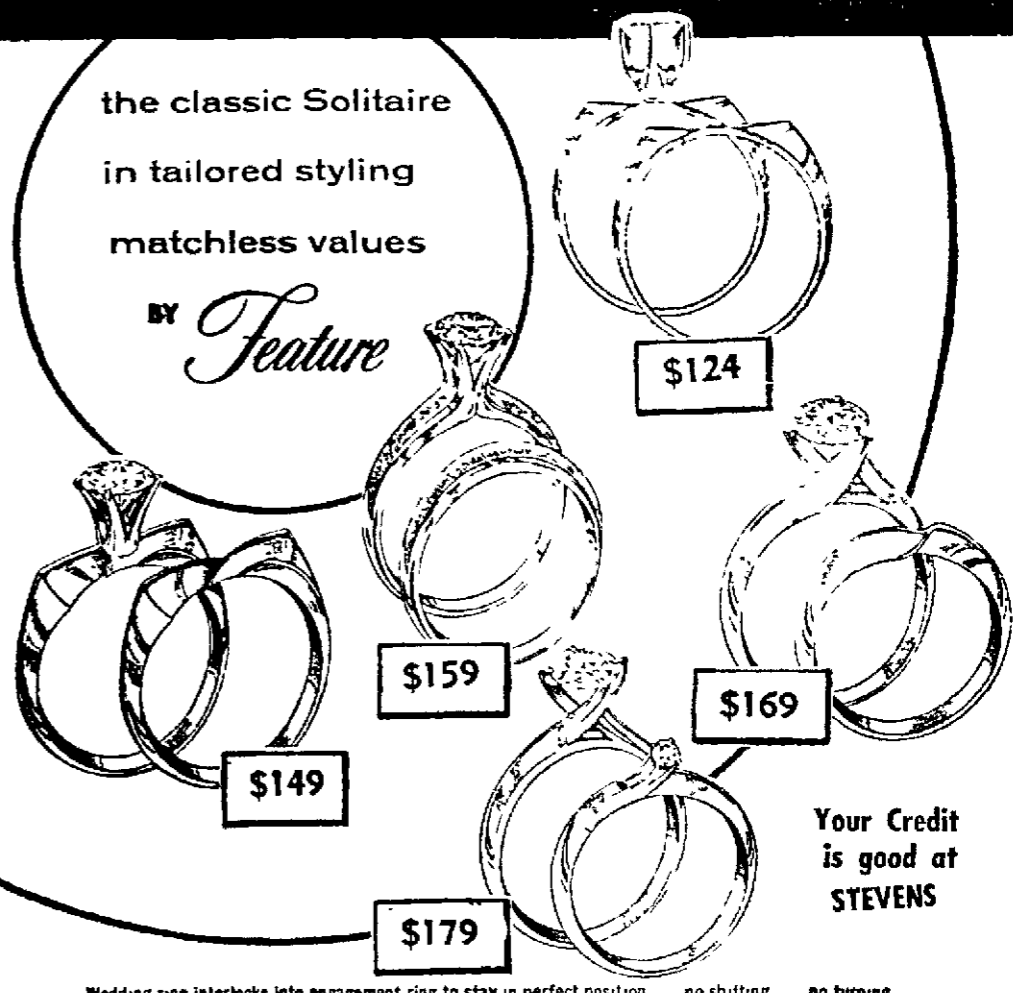

Iodi, Italy (AP)—The American movie "The American" banned in Italy on moral grounds. Although it has been Francesco Novello stops starring Snellie Winters in a show elsewhere in Italy for showings throughout the country. The movie has been months without difficulty, the U.S.

Living Cost Hike Call Frowned On

... BY JOHNSON

Washington (AP)—The White House, in suggesting a 3% pay raise for steelworkers, frowns on the union's demand for an additional cost-of-living hike, it was reported Wednesday.

This was confirmed on high authority after the United Steelworkers Union cautiously embraced the 3% White House recommendation, but said it won't give up its 3.9-cent cost-of-living demand.

"We're interested in both," said I. W. Abel, the union's president-elect who will take over steelworkers' bargaining June 1.

While the three per cent pay raise suggested by President Johnson's Council of Economic Advisers is within a fraction of a cent to the union's original demand of 3.2%, the difference soars to 4 cents an hour for more than 400,000 steelworkers when the union's cost-of-living demand is added.

This could become a major stumbling block when negotiations resume May 18 during a four-month strike truce negotiated last week.

Abel, interviewed on NBC's "Today" program, said both union and industry would undoubtedly use the White House report in the negotiations.

But he said the union would not consider itself bound by it. The three per cent wage hike which the economic advisers said the steel industry could afford without raising prices would amount to about 13 cents.

The union's 3.2% demand figures out to about 14 cents, but the cost-of-living item brings its total demand to 17.9 cents.

Leading West Countries OK British Loan

Paris (UPI) — Senior officials of 10 leading Western financial countries met Wednesday to approve a new $1.4 billion international loan to help tide Great Britain over her present money difficulties.

They sat as the "working party three" of the 21-nation Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD).

The countries represented were the United States, Canada, Japan, Great Britain, France, West Germany, Italy, The Netherlands, Switzerland and Sweden.

Chief United States representative was Under Secretary of the Treasury Frederick L. Deming.

The group met in secret and no announcement was expected. But diplomatic sources said its main purpose was to endorse $1.4 billion credit to Britain already approved by the finance ministers of the six European Common Market countries at Cannes Tuesday.

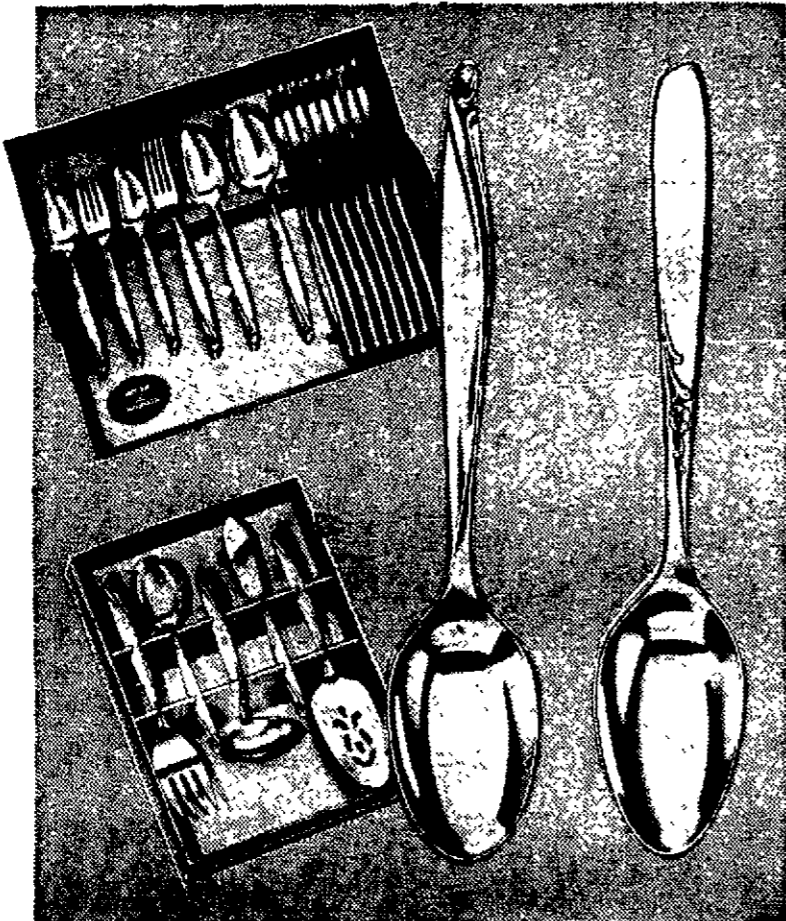

A further meeting to approve the credit was scheduled at the French finance ministry Thursday afternoon by the "Club of 10". Its members are the same as those of the OECD group, except that Belgium replaces Switzerland on it.

Britain has decided to pay back part of the $3 billion she borrowed from the central banks of the leading financial powers to support the pound sterling in last November's financial crisis.

In its place, she will be granted a medium-term credit of $1.4 billion by the International Monetary Fund. This will be financed by gold drawn from the fund's reserves, from the fund's currency reserves, from a special contribution by the United States and from a loan by the eight members of the "Club of 10" aside from the United States and Britain.

LBJ Dominican Policy Opens New Era In Latin Relations

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, May 6 — President Johnson, possibly without quite intending to do so, has opened a new era in U.S. relations with Latin America by his handling of the revolt in the Dominican Republic.

It could be an era of unprecedented cooperation, but it also could be a period of growing strife and bitterness over the use of U.S. military power to restrain communism.

It is this uncertainty over the future of these relations which has made the obviously painful debates of the Organization of American States here this week so vitally important. OAS decisions will determine whether the Latin American governments can cooperate increasingly to defeat Communist power grabs in this hemisphere or whether they will disagree over what is the proper course.

Extreme Urgency
Top U.S. officials see the problem as one of extreme urgency. They believe the major external challenge to the inter-American system comes today in the form of Communist "wars of liberation."

Other crises will arise, comparable to that in the Dominican Republic, unless the history of Latin American countries undergoes a total reversal.

Stevenson Asks U.N. To Allow OAS Efforts

United Nations, N.Y. (AP) — Adlai E. Stevenson appealed to the U.N. Security Council Wednesday to stand by while the Organization of American States tries to resolve the Dominican crisis. He said OAS efforts had already reached an advanced stage.

The chief U.S. delegate defended also the dispatch of U.S. armed forces to Santo Domingo as necessary to halt a Communist takeover.

He declared pro-Castro leaders were in the streets of Santo Domingo providing military and political leadership to the rebels within an hour or two after the revolt started.

Picture Of Disorder
Mindful of criticism from some Latin American nations that the U.S. action was taken without consultation with the OAS, Stevenson painted a picture of disorder and chaos in Santo Domingo in the immediate aftermath of the revolt.

He said the country faced the threat of "wholesale death and destruction" and added:

"I leave it to the conscience of every fair and humane person to decide if the United States took precipitate action a week ago tonight."

He read out the names of nine Communist leaders he said were actively involved in Communist attempts to seize control. Heading the list was Manuel Gonzalez Gonzalez described by Stevenson as a Spanish Communist and "a reported Cuban intelligence agent."

Exiles Return
Stevenson said that late in 1964 Communist leaders, including some who had been in exile, began returning to the Dominican Republic.

On the eve of the revolt, he added, they seized upon an unstable situation as ripe for exploitation. Shortly after the revolt flared the Communists were in control of secondary targets in slum areas and were providing a significant portion of the rebel forces with military and political leadership, he said.

He declared that while the bulk of the participants in the rebellion were not Communists, he could not predict "how the wheel can turn and what will happen tomorrow."

Cuban Revolt Similar
He recalled that in the case of the Cuban revolt only a few Communists were involved at the start.

Stevenson said that the U.S. forces were not taking sides in the Dominican conflict, but were acting to preserve the right of the Dominican people to determine their own future.

He said the Dominican crisis was now in the hands of the OAS, "the competent regional tribunal."

He expressed hope the council would keep the situation under review until the OAS completes its task, and the people are given a right to exercise their free choice of a government.

Specifically the question is whether the circumstances required the President to lay down a definition of purpose in the Dominican Republic in such broad terms that it seemed to project a new U.S. strategy of anti-Communist intervention in Latin American countries into the indefinite future.

Purpose To Save Lives
When the President first sent U.S. Marines ashore in the Dominican Republic a week ago he did so for the announced sole purpose of saving lives of U.S. citizens and other foreigners. As the Dominican capital, Santo Domingo, sank further into a state of anarchy and violence, sources here began to spread word that trained Communist agents were taking control of some elements of the rebel movement. This reinforced fears of a new Cuba.

By Friday night, Johnson was saying there was evidence that "people trained outside the Dominican Republic are seeking to gain control over the rebel movement."

Sunday night, Johnson said Communists had captured the revolution and asserted U.S. policy under such circumstances in these words:

"Our goal, in keeping with the great principles of the inter-American system, is to help prevent another Communist state in this hemisphere and we would like to do this without bloodshed or without large-scale fighting."

Future Projection
Late Monday, Johnson made the policy position more specific and gave it the long future projection in these words: "We... don't propose to sit here in our rocking chair with our hands folded and let the Communists set up any government in the Western Hemisphere."

State Department officials, worrying about how to keep U.S. relations with Latin America in balance at this crucial turning point, would obviously be happier if the policy line had not been hardened and sharply identified.

No one disputes that there has been a historic change in the state of U.S.-Latin American relations. Marines had not landed on Latin American territory in a generation.

In a conference at Montevideo in 1933 the United States under the new "Good Neighbor" policy of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, pledged there would be no more U.S. interventions in Latin American countries.

Three years later at Buenos Aires an inter-American conference, on Roosevelt's initiative, agreed: "The high contracting parties declare inadmissible the intervention of any one of them, directly or indirectly, and for whatever reason in the internal or external affairs of any other of the parties."

Same Prohibition
This same kind of prohibition against intervention was incorporated in the Rio Pact of 1947, the basic treaty of the post-war Western Hemisphere organization. The Rio Pact said: "No state or group of states has the right to intervene, directly or indirectly, for any reason whatever, in the internal or external affairs of any other state."

More than 10 years ago the United States began trying to persuade Latin American countries to accept its doctrine that communism is different from other political movements and poses a special threat to the security of this hemisphere. In 1954 at a meeting at Caracas, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles proposed unsuccessfully that internal Communist subversion be considered to constitute aggression against the country in which the subversion occurred. That meeting adopted a general anti-Communist declaration.

In January, 1962, at a meeting at Punta del Este, Uruguay, the United States got a basic statement of principle which has been cited by Johnson as a kind of legal support for his Dominican operation. Johnson recalled in his Sunday night speech a unanimous agreement in the 1962 conference on this declaration:

"The principles of communism are incompatible with the principles of the inter-American system."

Exempted Power Grabs
The essence of the administration's agreement now is that the 1962 declaration exempted Communist power grabs from the restraints of the Pan American system against intervention.

More practically, a judgment on U.S. action and future U.S. policy seems likely to be made in the first instance by the Organization of American States in terms of its response to U.S. proposals to internationalize the Dominican intervention and to create a permanent military international force to deal with any such crises in the future.

One road open to the OAS would lead to increasing cooperation against the Communist threat as it might develop in any specific country. The other road would lead to a U.S. go-it-alone policy on the issue of using force against a Communist threat and would surely produce increasing irritation in U.S.-Latin American relations.

U.S. Reappraisal In Viet Nam Asked ... QUAISON-SACKY SPEAKS

Philadelphia (P)—The United States should reappraise its position in Viet Nam before events go beyond the point of redemption. Alex Quaison-Sackey, president of the United Nations General Assembly, said Wednesday night.

He said he found encouragement in President Johnson's April 9 speech in Baltimore, outlining the U.S. position, but feels "the bombing of North Viet Nam should cease in order that negotiations without pre-conditions could start."

"As a great power, the United States should reappraise its position in the light of the realities of Southeast Asia," Quaison-Sackey said in a prepared speech accepting the Barnwell Award from Central High School.

"What do the majority of South Viet Nam want? Should there be a global conflict based on ideological conflict? We should find the answers to such questions before events go beyond redemption."

Quaison-Sackey, also Ghana's permanent representative to the United Nations, said he felt it was "unfortunate that the People's Republic of China (the Communist government) with its 700 million inhabitants has not yet been able to take its seat and be buffeted by the mainstream of opinion and ideas prevalent at the U.N."

He said he hoped the day was not too distant when the Red Chinese would be admitted since "universality permits discussion, ventilation of conflicts."

He listed Germany and Viet Nam as "grave problems in our world today which have not been effectively tackled by the U.N. because of the strong position taken by one or more great powers."

The Barnwell Award cited Quaison-Sackey for "practicing the highest principles of honor and especially moral courage, regardless of immediate or apparent results." Robert F. Kennedy, then U.S. attorney general, was last year's recipient.

Trolley Boat Suggested For Messina Strait

Milan, Italy (P)—Milan Engineer Walter Ronchi proposes an electric trolley boat line for the Strait of Messina, saying it could whisk passengers between Sicily and southern Italy at 62 m.p.h.

He said it would cost only two-thirds the $480 million estimated for a much-discussed suspension bridge over the turbulent (Scylla and Charybdis) waters that range from two to ten miles wide.

MERCENARIES KILL 35 REBELS IN CONGO

Leopoldville, The Congo (UPI)—Thirty five pro-Communist Congolese were killed by white mercenary-led government forces Tuesday in a rebel attack on the northeast town of Niangara, according to reports reaching here Wednesday.

The reports said the insurgents came from Doruma, a post on the border with the Sudan. Niangara is about 75 miles south of the triangle formed by the Congo, the Sudan, and the Central African Republic.

Previous reports said the rebels withdrew from the Niangara area into Sudanese territory. The white mercenaries had been destroying border crossings—particularly bridges—to hinder vehicular traffic of rebels.

Other Congolese army forces were said to have met "stiff resistance" west of Niangara, when they sought to enter the rebel pocket northwest of Stanleyville, the former rebel capital.

The rebels there are said to be concentrated at Monga, near the border with the Central African Republic.

Government forces reportedly sealed off the borders into the Congo last month, but since then have made few advances against constant harassment from isolated rebel groups.

The principal remaining rebel forces are said to be concentrated about 130 miles Northwest of Stanleyville, and at Bafwasende, about 165 miles northwest of Stanleyville.

LBJ Reaffirms U.S. Duty To Germany

Bonn, Germany (AP) — President Johnson reaffirmed Wednesday U.S. responsibility to help resolve the German problem, along with the other allied victors of World War II. He said that until the German people are reunited in freedom, the West German government is its only rightful representative.

Johnson made the statement in a message to West German President Heinrich Lübke on the 10th anniversary of the treaty granting sovereignty to the Federal Republic of Germany.

Negro Prays In Senate

Washington (AP) — Dr. James E. Kirkland of the Union Baptist Church of Philadelphia offered the prayer opening the senate's session Wednesday. Veteran officials said he was the first Negro in the memory of anyone on Capitol Hill to offer the opening prayer in that body.

The minister, in Washington as a guest of Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., asked God's guidance in solving the "mighty world problems which now baffle the keenest perceptions of our wisest statesmen and profoundest philosophers."

He spoke of this guidance as "the great rock that the weathering agents of communism and secularism cannot erode."

"Fire the moral and spiritual fibre of the nation that we, as a nation, may never forget that things in themselves are too poor to make us rich, too low to raise us to happiness, too limited and narrow and circumscribed to fill the capacities of our nobler and holier nature," he prayed. "Heighten our moral and spiritual horizon that we may dedicate all that we have and are to thee."

Pressure Mounts To Include Paying Hospital Specialists

Washington (UPI)—Pressure mounted Wednesday for including payment for services of hospital specialists among basic benefits in the administration's health care package for older persons.

Representatives of the Blue Cross Association and the Physicians Forum appeared before the Senate Finance Committee to urge insurance for fees charged by specialists. These include anesthesiologists, pathologists, X-ray analysts and physical therapists.

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., speaking before the National Conference on Aging, also supported such coverage. He said a major fault of the so-called Medicare bill passed by the House was absence of specialty services payments as a basic benefit.

The Senate Finance Committee is holding public hearings on the $6 billion House health care bill which includes a hospital insurance program for people over 65, as well as an increase in Social Security payments and other benefits. The bill now covers specialists' services only under a government-subsidized voluntary program for supplemental insurance to cover medical costs.

Dr. Edward Young of the Physicians Forum testified that this provision "serves the financial interests of the specialty group concerned at the expense of the health interests of the aged."

Walter J. McNeerney, president of Blue Cross, said these fees normally are now included in a patient's hospital bill. "Why should (the program) become a device by which special interests seek an objective which they haven't been able to reach in the private market, with the federal government an unwitting accomplice?" he asked.

McNeerney also asked that the legislation assign Blue Cross a major role in administering hospital insurance

Guidelines For Church Gift Claims Started

Washington (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service said Wednesday that flexible guidelines had been established in many sections of the country for one of the most sensitive points in income tax collection—the amount a taxpayer can claim for church contributions.

The guidelines, which apparently vary from about $50 to $80, are used by tax technicians when they interview a taxpayer who does not have records to back up the church and charitable deductions claimed on his return.

Officials here were questioned about the guidelines after the New York district commissioner revealed that $78 a year had been set as the guideline for unsubstantiated church and charitable contributions for that area.

The Washington officials denied that there was a campaign to crack down on persons who claimed large deductions for church and charitable contributions. Each district director is permitted to establish his own guideline, an official said, and many of them have established guidelines even though there has been no widespread publicity on the subject.

Asked why there had been no publicity from the district directors, the Washington official replied, "I suppose no one questioned them about it. Perhaps there has been some local publicity in some areas."

loin roast for rotisserie

Take the sizzle out of summer meals. On hot summer days or evenings move the cooking to the porch or outdoors. By cooking roasts on outdoor or table-top rotisseries, you can relax in the shade while the meat is cooking.

Barbecued pork loin is a favorite with cooks who like easy living. The pleasantly sweet, mildly flavored sauce has a refreshing tartness that accents the subtle flavor of roasted pork. Pork loins, bone-in or boned and rolled, seem to cook best on a rotisserie. The roast can be easily balanced on a spit. The meat constantly bastes itself as it turns making it particularly juicy and flavorful when cooked. Why not try a large loin so there will be leftovers for making tasty sandwiches and cold plates at another meal?

Garnished with pineapple slices, strawberries and watercress or mint, this barbecued pork loin is a real beauty. Served with a cool, crisp vegetable salad, rolls, iced beverage and a dessert of chilled melon wedges, it makes an elegant "easy-do" porch or patio dinner for family or guests.

BARBECUED PORK LOIN

- 4 to 6 pound center cut pork loin or boned and tied pork loin, as desired
  - $\frac{1}{8}$  cup finely chopped onion
  - 1 clove garlic
  - 1 tablespoon drippings
  - 1 can (6 ounce) tomato paste
  - $\frac{3}{4}$  cup honey
  - $\frac{1}{2}$  cup red wine vinegar
  - 3 tablespoons soy sauce
  - 1 teaspoon salt
  - 1 teaspoon celery seed
  - 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- Balance roast on spit and tighten prongs. Place spit in rotisserie holder and start turning spit. Cooking time will vary with equipment used. Check directions supplied by manufacturer of equipment, or roast over low, glowing coals or electric unit to an internal temperature of 185 degrees F. as indicated on a roast meat thermometer. If you figure 25 to 30 minutes per pound of meat, you can estimate the final roasting time. While meat is roasting, prepare sauce. Saute onion and garlic in drippings until onion is tender but not brown. Add remaining ingredients; mix well. Simmer to blend flavors, 15 to 20 minutes. During the last 30 minutes of roasting, brush meat frequently with sauce. Save remaining sauce to serve, hot or cold, with meat. Yield: 8 to 10 servings.

Live and Learn

If there is to be a gathering of the clan at your home there doubtless is a lot of "fuss and bother" going on to make sure every corner is whisked clean of dirt and every piece of furniture looks its brightest.

There is a new product on the market, and its producers say it is a quick and easy way to brighten and beautify dull, tired-looking upholstery. This comes in an aerosol foam color spray, called Fabri-Color. Going right to the fiber to provide fresh glowing color, the odorless spray will not change the original texture of any fabric commonly used for upholstery — cotton, wool, or synthetic. Available in 16 decorator shades.

When you get out your plastic table cloth for the picnic table, did you discover a rip where someone might have let a steak knife slip last summer? No need to throw it away. A very useful, new, mending patch material called Fixit is crystal clear, allowing the tear to be repaired so that it will barely show.

Fixit will mend almost anything in fabric or plastic, wet or dry—we are told that it will mend upholstery; stop a leak in a swimming pool while it's full of water, and do wonders for a worn spot on a convertible top. After Fixit is applied, there is no waiting for the adhesive to dry. The repaired article can be used immediately.

Zip-Tease isn't the name of a new dance, but it is the newest fad in costume jewelry for the young set. No girl need be a zipper zero in her crowd with this new jewelry. One of the items, a twelve-inch necklace, comes in bright red and black with sparkling metal teeth and pulley. The tease is that the zany zippers really open and close with functional fascination although their purpose is strictly fashion and fun. Every girl can have the zenith in zip styling by adding her own zipper where the clothes manufacturer didn't!

Here Are Rules For Successful Deep Fat Frying

Deep-fat frying presents a challenge to many home-makers, and those who master this art enjoy a real feeling of accomplishment. Yet deep-fat frying need not present insurmountable obstacles. By following a few important rules, most home-makers can successfully prepare popular deep-fried foods.

The most important factor in deep-frying is maintenance of the proper fat temperature. A temperature of about 375 degrees is considered satisfactory for frying most foods. Higher temperatures cause food to brown too quickly on the outside before the inside is cooked through. On the other hand, temperatures too low do not allow a crust to form rapidly enough, causing food to become grease-soaked.

SIMPLE TEST FOR FAT TEMPERATURE

To determine most accurately the fat temperature, use a thermometer especially constructed for deep-fat frying. If you don't have a deep-fat thermometer, try this simple test. Heat the fat; when you think it is near the desired temperature, drop a 1-inch bread cube into it. If the bread browns in 60 seconds, the temperature is about 375 degrees.

Here are a few hints to help you maintain the correct frying temperature, once it has been reached. Do not try too much at one time, adding too many pieces of food to the hot fat causes an excessive reduction of temperature. Let the fat return to the desired temperature after frying each batch of food and before adding any more.

Foods to be fried should be as near room temperature as possible. If too cold, foods cause the fat temperature to be lowered too much. This is true both for uncoated foods such as potatoes, as well as foods to be dipped in batter.

Pieces of raw food to be fried uncoated and those to be dipped in batter should be patted dry with absorbent paper. Surplus surface moisture again, may cause the fat temperature to drop too much and also prevent the batter from clinging to the food.

No One Skips This Class Visit

Sometimes when the younger fellows take over a kitchen, the whole place turns into a mess. But this doesn't happen when the Boys Chef Class meets at the Southwest Community Center on Tuesdays. The six young lads, aged eight to 11, are well organized and they are learning how to be "master chefs."

The class has been meeting weekly under the direction of Barry Johnston, and we suspect the students regret that it must come to an end.

A few weeks ago the boys feasted on runzas which by the way, was a two-part operation a week for each part. The first week was 'operation hamburger filling'; the second week they rolled out the dough, added the filling, and popped them in the oven.

You can imagine what happened next—the best part of each class meeting always comes at the end. At least it did on the day we dropped in on the class. It was fried chicken day and when we arrived a couple of pieces of the chicken were already brown. Showing how it's done is Mark Buckley, 9 years old. Behind him on the left is Mark Harral 9 years old, who seems to be chairman and sole member of the clean dishes committee. Next is Eric Siepker, also 9 years old, who is keeping the chief chef supplied with more floured chicken. Mr. Johnston is right behind him, measuring out aluminum foil for a lid. (The class has two skillets and only one lid.) On his right is 10 years old Dale Mehser, ready to supply Eric with flour. Dennis Svoboda, who turned 9 years old a few days after we took the picture, has readied the biscuits to pop in the oven.

Saigon shops with Halstead

Elizabeth Halstead, a correspondent for United Press International, ignored the war for a moment and followed the female instinct. When she arrived in Viet Nam she headed straight for Saigon's teeming shops to nose out a bargain or two. Here is the story on her experiences.

War and politics in this troubled capital may belong to the men but dressmaker's row along Tu Do street is strictly a woman's world.

And what a world. Where else could a woman with a nose for bargains pick out the exact piece of finest French silk, design her own sleek sheath and have it custom tailored for as little as $8.

The "ready-made" dress is virtually impossible to find in Saigon and it forces a girl to improvise—or perhaps create would be a better word.

The first step to making a dress in Saigon begins along Tu Do street with its myriad of material shops featuring everything the well-dressed woman prefers from silks to cottons to dacrons and rayons.

A trip through the hundreds of shops leaves a woman's eyes aglow with polka dots, stripes, beautiful floral patterns and colored prints.

Bargain-hunting is a fine art in Saigon. Prices vary from shop to shop. The sharp-eyed female usually travels through most of them until she finds the right piece at the right price.

And if she commands a little bit of the Vietnamese language she can hit the main market stalls and save even more money.

After selecting material, the shopper heads for one of the hundreds of tailoring shops.

There she finds fashion books with the latest styles from Paris, Rome and New York from which she can choose a pattern for her tailor to follow.

Or, if she has a touch of adventurous spirit in her, milady can test her own creativity against that of the houses of Dior and Chanel by designing her own dress with the assistance of her tailor.

The price goes up as the design becomes more intricate and requires more work.

For a two-piece fully-lined suit the tailor might charge as high as $9 or $10.

The tailors work fast and they have the creation whipped out with excellent workmanship in four days.

ABBY

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: We live on a farm, and every summer we are bombarded with the kids of our city relatives. Summers are important to a farmer because if he doesn't get his crops harvested then, it can cost him hundreds of dollars. Yet every summer, as soon as school is out, we have an endless stream of kids getting in the way, taking up our time and slowing up our work.

Don't say, "Put them to work," because some of those city kids are so lazy they won't even pick up their own clothes. They would rather walk around them.

If the situation were reversed, and we sent our kids to our city relatives, would their husbands take the kids to the office and watch them all day so they wouldn't get into trouble, hurt themselves, or break something? And I wonder how many city wives would like to give up their bridge parties and make extra meals and do extra laundry for the kids. What do you suggest?

FARMER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I suggest you tell your city relatives exactly what you have told me. People who permit others to impose on them because they lack the nerve to say "NO" have to put up with the consequences.

***

DEAR ABBY: My best friend from sorority (we are both graduated from college now) asked me to be her maid of honor. She's being married soon. I accepted. Then she called me long distance and said the best man was 6'4", and since I am only 5'1" we would look silly together. So how would I like to be one of the six bridesmaids? I said all right. Then she called again and said she hoped I wouldn't feel bad but all the other bridesmaids were tall girls, and I was too short to be a bridesmaid. She made me promise I'd come to her wedding anyway. My mother says if I go I am a sap. Abby, I have never heard of cutting a girl out of a wedding party because she was too short, have you?

TOO SHORT

DEAR SHORT: NO! Your friend, the bride, is also short on common sense and courtesy. I agree with your mother.

***

DEAR ABBY: Will you please tell me what you think of a mother who lets her four-year-old child kick her, hit her and slam her over the head with his toys or anything he happens to have in his hand at the moment? This little monster is so spoiled it is pathetic, and he has a very ugly temper. My friend just laughs and says it doesn't hurt, and she makes no effort to correct or punish him. I feel so sorry for her.

AIRPORT ROAD

DEAR ROAD: Don't waste your sympathy on the mother. The "little monster" will need it when he goes to school and tries to use those tactics on his teacher and playmates. When a mother neglects to teach her child how to control his emotions, he learns the hard way. And pays dearly for the lesson.

***

CONFIDENTIAL TO FASHION-MINDED: Yes, the skirts are getting shorter, and the necklines are plunging deeper. And I don't like it, either, but as long as the two don't eventually meet, we are lucky.

Opening lead—king of spades.

Many contracts stand or fall depending upon the location of an apparently insignificant card. However, putting low cards to work so that they will pull their weight is not self-evident in every hand, and, in fact, in many deals the importance of these low cards is frequently overlooked.

Here is a case where East, with his seemingly useless hand, struck a decisive blow for the defense which succeeded in defeating the contract.

West opened the bidding with a spade. When this came around to South, he doubled. Of course, South could have bid two hearts instead of doubling, but such action would have been improper with his hand.

A two heart bid would have indicated a much weaker hand than South had, since such a bid in the protective seat would not have represented much more than an average hand.

Having doubled first, before bidding two hearts, South announced substantial values, and North, quite properly, invited South to bid game.

A quick look at all four hands would indicate that declarer's only losers are two spades and a heart, but the defense functioned very well and South had to go down one.

West led the king of spades and continued with the queen East playing high-low to show his doubleton. West realized that with normal defense the declarer would make the contract if, as seemed likely from the bidding, he had the K-Q-J of hearts, the ace of diamonds and king of clubs.

So at trick three West led the three of spades, hoping that East would ruff with the seven of hearts, if he had it.

East did have the seven, and obligingly played it. The result was that South had to lose two trump tricks instead of one. Ruffing with the seven was not a really hard play to make, but still East was entitled to some credit for showing signs of life with his dull hand.

BRIDE
at May wedding

White spring blossoms and lighted candles appointed the chancel of the First Presbyterian Church Saturday afternoon, May 1, for the marriage of Miss Roylyn Margaret Harvey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milroy Arch Harvey, to Capt. Thomas Lee Package, USAF, son of Mrs. Thomas Package of Fayette City, Pa. The service was solemnized by Dr. Glover Leitch, and Max Bunker, organist, played the wedding music. The vocalist was John Zel.

Wearing daytime frocks in pastel blue, nubbed linen were Miss Virginia Schmidt, the maid of honor; and the bridesmaids, Miss Vivian Christensen and Mrs. Fred Harb. They carried nosegays of white and blue carnations.

Howard Vest served as best man, and the corps of ushers included Capt. Raymond Albright, Lt. Joseph Gonzales, Daniel Harvey, Capt. Thomas McKenzie and Capt. Ronald Tanno.

The bride chose white brocade for her wedding gown. A standing, cuffed collar accented the bodice, which was completed by three-quarter sleeves, and the slim skirt was complemented by a court train extending to chapel length. A circlet of brocade held her illusion veil, and she carried a modern arrangement of Birds of Paradise.

Capt. and Mrs. Package will reside at 1308 So. 17th. A former student at the University of Nebraska, the bride is attending Lincoln General Hospital School of Nursing. Capt. Package attended the University of Pennsylvania and Harlingen Air Force Academy.

Attendants Announced

May bride-elect, Miss Mary Hansen, whose wedding will take place next Saturday at Columbus, is naming the members of her bridal party this morning.

Miss Hansen, who will become the bride of Ron Frey of Columbus, has chosen her sister, Miss Laura Hansen, as her maid of honor, and her bridesmaids will be Miss Lida Tilley and her fiancé's sister, Miss Janet Frey, all of Columbus. Mr. Frey's sister, Miss Marcia Frey, will be the junior bridesmaid, and Miss Anne Mosher of Lincoln will be flower girl.

Lighting the candles for the 2 o'clock service, to be solemnized at St. Luke's United Church of Christ, will be Miss Janice Timan of North Platte, and Miss Linda Thomson Superior.

Richard Frey will serve as his brother's best man, and the corps of ushers will include Jerry Frey and Charles Frey, also brothers of the bridegroom-elect, Randall Juracek, Keith Miller and Lonny Weijen.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale H. Hansen of Columbus, the soon-to-be bride is a student at Lincoln General Hospital School of Nursing.

Revealing the names of her wedding attendants this morning is Miss Catherine Packett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Packett, whose marriage to James W. Rolofson will take place on Saturday, June 5.

The University of Nebraska coed has chosen her sister, Miss Cheryl Packett, as her maid of honor, and her bridesmaid will be Miss Jean Schafer. Mrs. Larry Clark and Mrs. Gary Gustafson, Mr. Rolofson's sister, will be the bridesmaids, and attending her cousin as flower girl will be Miss Julie Ragam of Milford.

Miss Packett's brother, Virgil Packett, Jr., will light the candles for the 4 o'clock service, to be solemnized at Havelock Methodist Church.

Serving as best man will be Keith Schmidt, and the groomsmen will include Wayne Kaidahl, Bill Whitson, Virgil Packett, Jr., and Gary Gustafson. Mr. Rolofson's nephew, Eric Gustafson, will be ring-bearer.

Entertaining recently for the bride-to-be was Miss Jean Schafer who was hostess to a group of guests at her home. During the informal party, a miscellaneous shower was presented to Miss Packett.

NEWS

of the suburban areas

Now that the weather is encouraging youngsters to move about the neighborhood, we hear many complaints from parents that they no longer can find the little migrants. But it's so much fun for the small fry, and if they don't come when they hear a parental voice it's because they are preoccupied—with fun.

For those parents whose children wander beyond the shouting range, may we suggest you install a dinner bell to attract the attentions of the small adventurers.

But the wandering problem goes beyond the small set contingent. After you take a look at this morning's news you will be able to understand why we need our own signal for keeping tabs on all the social activity in Park Manor and its vacationers.

PARK MANOR

One set of travelers who will be hard to keep up with are Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Sasse.

Mr. and Mrs. Sasse will leave Friday for New Jersey and New York. In New Jersey the couple will head for Newton where Mrs. Sasse's parents and several brothers and sisters reside. During their stay there Mr. and Mrs. Sasse plan to move from one home to another as they spend about six days in the Newton area. The New York ventures will hopefully include a second look at the World's Fair activity and a Broadway show. It all sounds exciting and busy, and perhaps the vacationers will be happy to return home the following Sunday.

A former Lincoln resident made his way back to his old neighborhood Monday and Tuesday. We are speaking of Maj. Frank Burrell, now of Bossier City, La. Maj. Burrell was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Miller during his two-day visit, but spent some of his time looking up old friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller have more news of arriving guests this morning. The guests incidentally, have an interesting vacation spot in the back of their minds. Coming next week for an indefinite stay with Mr. and Mrs. Miller will be Mrs. Miller's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Severson of Huntington Beach, Calif. Mr. and Mrs. Severson, who will be traveling by air, are making the Lincoln stop en route to their vacation destination in Norway.

The Norway stay will include visits with Mrs. Severson's brother and sister and their families.

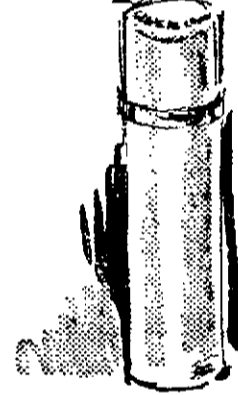

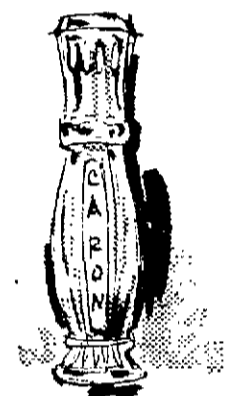

There were seven parents who didn't need to use their voices or a dinner bell in order to locate the whereabouts of their youngsters last Tuesday evening.

The seven boys were all situated in good hands at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Adams. Two of Mr. and Mrs. Adams' sons, Dave and Steve, invited seven Boy Scout friends over to join them in watching the television show on Camp Kitaki. The guests included David Alley, Steve MacDonald, Brian Knox, Steve Gruhn, Scott Whitcomb, Steve Bruce and Michael Fritch. In keeping with the Scout theme, the boys enjoyed Scout popcorn and Kool-aid.

Another young set social affair which is to take place on Sunday afternoon is the birthday party for Cameron Hinds. Cameron who will be five years old on that very day is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hinds.

The five guests who have been invited to the happy event will enjoy cartoons and other movies. Of course, the traditional ice cream and cake will follow the entertainment.

If you are in search of any member of the feminine set on Broadmore Drive may we inform you now of their whereabouts tonight. They will all be gathering at the home of Mrs. Roby Dollar for the purposes of playing bridge. To be more specific here are the names of those in the neighborhood bridge group who plan to attend — Mrs. Van Hunn, Mrs. Peter Nichols, Mrs. Robert Schmit, Mrs. Leonard Starr, Mrs. Gary Whiteley, Mrs. Wesley Tomhave and Mrs. Thomas Beal.

D.C. Project Gives Poor Tykes Feel

Washington (UPI) — Marcus Berry, 5, is a city slicker. He had never seen a live chicken until he joined the preschool project.

Little Kevin Wigenton, who is 4 likes to finger-paint. But until his teacher taught him about colors, he couldn't call them by name.

He and his classmates also posted a display which observed "things feel different." The display contained a wad of cotton which they learned is "soft," a feather which "tickles," and paper "tears."

These children and many more like them are part of a preschool project for underprivileged children designed to prepare them to meet the challenge of school.

Federal officials and many educators see it as potentially the most successful of all the anti-poverty projects because it reaches the children at the formative age. The Johnson administration calls the program "project headstart."

First lady Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson visited a preschool project in the basement of a church in northwest Washington Wednesday to preview what more than 600,000 children all over the United States will experience in head start development centers, which hopefully will be under way by July 1.

The Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) announced that it will be ready to list some 2,500 "Headstart" schools within the next 10 days.

The project Mrs. Johnson visited is sponsored by the United Planning Organization, financed by the Ford Foundation and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare's office of juvenile delinquency and youth development.

45 Children Each
It operates on a budget of $260,000 annually, teaching 375 3 to 5-year-olds in five groups of 45 children each.

Mrs. Audrey Gibson, director of the center, says, "Our purpose is to give them a start before they are left behind."

As Mrs. Johnson entered the classroom, a group of youngsters, dressed in their Sunday best, were learning a folk dance.

Another group worked wooden puzzles, several little girls played "mother" by washing their toy dishes in soapy water, and a half dozen little boys were kneading dough and pouring bright colored dry paint on it.

Mrs. Johnson questioned Mrs. Gibson carefully about the program, learning that each child is given a medical examination when he joins the class.

As Mrs. Johnson left, a little child pressed a homemade flower pot into her hand. The first lady smiled when she was told the pot contained a flowering running bean plant. The plant grows flowers, not beans.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. # Talent Thin In '65 NBA Draft

... BRADLEY NO PROSPECT

New York (AP)—The National Basketball Association is set to go on its annual fishing expedition for talent—but the prize catch won't be available, regardless of the bait.

The nine-team pro league holds its player draft Thursday at a midtown hotel, with a new wrinkle designed to bolster the have-leasts.

However, the man most likely to succeed in the NBA from among the crop of eligibles — Princeton's inimitable Bill Bradley—has ruled himself a non-prospect. The 6-foot-5 All America won a Rhodes Scholarship and intends to spend the next two years at Oxford. Afterwards, he plans to study law.

That obviously puts Bradley out of the NBA picture although there undoubtedly would be a big bundle of money for his services.

The big loser in Bradley's case is the New York Knicks, who would get first crack at him since Princeton is within their territorial sphere of influence. New York has two first-round picks under the NBA's new drafting system to help the divisional tail-enders, and might use one of them for Bradley on the off-chance he will be available some day.

After Bradley, the list of prospects is comparatively unimpressive. NBA people agree it's a lean year for talent as they prepare for their draft, which has no set number of rounds.

Leading possibilities, in order of height, seem to be:

Sophomore Star Cracks ISU 440 Record In Dual

Ames, Iowa (UPI)—Sophomore track star Steve Carson cracked the oldest standing record at Iowa State University Tuesday in a dual track meet against State College of Iowa.

Carson was clocked in 47.7 for the 440-yard dash, erasing a mark of 48.1 set back in 1922 by Deac Walters.

State College Of Iowa Dumps ISU

Ames, Iowa (UPI)—State College of Iowa scored three runs in the 2nd and 4 runs in the 4th to crush Iowa State, 7-1.

Leo Hensley scored a three-run triple in the 2nd and Larry Gabe connected for another triple to drive in two runs in the 4th.

'Beginner's Luck' May Have Helped, Berra Says

New York (AP)—"You can't tell about them hits. It might be beginner's luck."

Yogi Berra had just crawled out of bed at his suburban home in Montclair, N.J., and was talking over the telephone about Tuesday night's experience at Shea Stadium.

Like a man who spent the first summery day working on the grass in the back yard, Yogi was a little stiff. After all, he caught a full nine innings for the first time since Sept. 21, 1963 while the New York Mets were beating the Phillies 2-1.

"I don't feel too bad," said Berra, who will be 40 on next Wednesday. "I'm a little stiff from the legs up."

"Yeah, I asked for it. I asked him (Manager Casey

Fickler Named Racing Secretary For Lincoln Meet

Jack Fickler of Omaha, veteran race track official, will assume the racing secretary post at the Lincoln Fairgrounds this year and will finish out the year in the same capacity at Columbus, Madison and Atokad at South Sioux City.

Fickler will replace Jimmy Wallace who has accepted a similar job at Centennial near Denver. Fickler has been Wallace's assistant this year at Grand Island's Fonner Park.

Both men will work at the Ak-Sar-Ben meeting in Omaha, but in other capacities. Wallace was in his second season on the Nebraska circuit.

Fickler was the choice of the track general managers at a meeting held this week at Grand Island.

Pairings Set For 6-Team Tourney

Pairings for the six-team college baseball tournament sponsored by Nebraska Wesleyan University were announced Wednesday by coach Irv Peterson.

The tournament will be played May 13-14 at Sherman Field in Lincoln. Four games are scheduled each day, beginning at 1 p.m.

In first round action, Nebraska Wesleyan will meet Creighton at 1 p.m. Dana faces Concordia at 3:30 p.m. and Hastings plays Midland at 6 p.m. The winner of that one moves directly to the finals. The last game will be at 8:30 p.m. between the Wesleyan-Creighton winner and the Dana-Concordia victor.

The championship game is scheduled for 8:30 p.m. Friday. It will be preceded by three losers-bracket contests, beginning at 1 p.m.

Schuyler, Aurora Win

David City—Schuyler won the ninth grade competition and Aurora the seventh and eighth grade title in the David City Junior High track meet. Highlighting the meet was a 20-2 broad jump effort by Seward's Beckler.

But now is the time when Nebraska usually makes some sort of rush. In the last nine games last year they won only four, but three of the losses were by two or less runs. And three were to potent Missouri at Columbia.

Nebraska Pin Teams At ABC

Teams from Wahoo, Neb., and South Sioux City were the latest bowling teams at the 62nd annual ABC bowling tournament.

8-Man Game Needed

Sutherland — Sutherland High School is seeking an eight-man football opponent for Oct. 8, 1965. Interested schools should contact coach Daryl Broberg.

Though that set of statistics isn't particularly impressive, NU's style of play has always been sharper. This year if the improvement comes again, it will hopefully net some wins.

Against Oklahoma State, it could be tough. They have some of the league's top hitters. So Nebraska's good pitching staff will be put to a test again.

Coach Tony Sharpe will go with Stan Bahnsen and Bob Hergenrader in the Friday doubleheader in Stillwater, and will probably start with Gary Neibauer in the nine-inning single game Saturday.

Bahnsen (3-1) pitched a sharp four-hitter against Iowa State for a 1-0 victory last Friday. The league's top earned average man Tim Van Galder took the loss.

Hergenrader (2-1) ran into some one-inning trouble and lost to the Cyclones, 3-2. (Three of Nebraska's four losses have been, 3-2). Neibauer worked four innings in the 14-5 loss Saturday, shutting ISU out the last three innings.

Randy Harris was the top hitter over the weekend, banging out six hits in nine at-bats.

Nebraska returns home for its final NU Diamond appearance May 14-15 against Oklahoma and will close May 21-22 at Kansas.

Red China Upsets Nature Of 18-Year India-Pakistan Feud

By CONRAD FINK
New Delhi, India — Communist China has changed the entire character of the 18-year-old quarrel between India and Pakistan. The dispute suddenly is more dangerous for India.

China invited itself in Tuesday by broadcasting support of Pakistan and charging India with "big nation chauvinism and expansionism" in the Rann of Kutch frontier dispute.

Less than 24 hours after the Chinese announcement, Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri told parliament India would not disturb the 5-day-old de facto cease-fire in the Kutch

With China's sudden intervention it is certain that the quarrel over the Kutch will never be the same — and neither will the many other issues India and Pakistan have fought over.

Until now, most big powers stayed out of the running conflict between these two neighbors in the hopes it would merely smolder or at worst be a localized affair that would not escalate and drag in other nations.

Now, however, China has upped the ante, hunting strongly that from now on India and its 430 million people have more to contend with than Pakistan's 110 millions.

Peking's declaration of "full support" to Pakistan implies that 600 million or so Chinese are behind the Pakistanis.

The raises crucial questions for the United States, Britain and other Western countries which have tried to stay friendly with both India and Pakistan. Will the United States, for example, hear out a Pakistani case that has the "full support" of Peking?

China has no love for India since the 1962 conflict along India's border with Communist-held Tibet. Peking rarely misses an opportunity to embarrass India.

But China's current stance in the Pakistan-India quarrel is probably the direct result of one of the slickest diplomatic maneuvers to come out of Asia in years.

This is the recent success President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan has had in divesting himself of ties with the United States and the West and nesting up to his Chinese neighbors.

Ayub now has the best of two worlds. American weapons and Chinese diplomatic support.

China's announcement caused consternation in the Indian parliament. Worried members asked whether there were any signs such as troop movements to indicate China's intentions.

Nowhere in Asia and Africa has a government come forward to support India's claim that it has been invaded and its soil violated.

India, Pakistan Agree To Shaky Cease-Fire

New Delhi (UPI)—India Wednesday announced what amounted to a cease-fire in the disputed Rann of Kutch area. Pakistan was understood to have made a similar move.

India Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri told parliament the government had ordered its troops to hold their fire while new diplomatic efforts for a peaceful settlement were underway.

In London, Prime Minister Harold Wilson told the House of Commons that Shastri and Pakistan President Mohammed Ayub Khan had issued statements to the effect they would observe a de facto ceasefire.

He declined to give details of the proposals since "the process of consultations through diplomatic channels" is still going on.

However, he warned that the lull in fighting in the past few days could end abruptly.

"It is essential that Pakistan should refrain from the use and threat of force and withdraw its forces from positions which they did not occupy before," he said.

Opposition

However, opposition members in the Indian parliament called on Shastri to use force to fight back the "invaders" as soon as possible. Some accused the government of "committing a shameful" act by agreeing to stop the shooting "of any enemy when he's still on Indian soil."

In an effort to appease the opposition, Shastri said there had been no formal cease-fire proclaimed. But he said Indian armed forces "will do nothing to aggravate the situation" unless they are provoked by Pakistani troops.

(There was no immediate official word from Karachi about the conditional ceasefire. Instead, a government spokesman charged India was massing troops along its borders with both East and West Pakistan. He said India's 11th Tank Corps was grouping less than 50 miles from the West Pakistan provincial capital of Lahore.)

Being Considered
Shastri said new peace proposals were put forward Tuesday night by special British envoy John Freeman. He said they were being considered in New Delhi and by the Pakistani government.

YEMEN SIDES OK PEACE TERMS

Cairo (UPI)—Peace terms ending the civil war in the Yemen have been adopted by the rival republican and royalist regimes, the Middle East News Agency reported.

Fighting began in September, 1962, when the republicans overthrew the royalist government of Imam Mohammed al-Badr and burned his palace.

Egypt sent troops into Yemen to help the republicans. Saudi Arabia and Jordan sent assistance to the royalists.

MENA said the terms called for peace overtures of royalist tribes supporting al-Badr, and for talks with Saudi Arabia, which has been backing him. The royalists were not represented in talks which led to the reported agreement.

The Story Behind The Headlines! SOUTH VIET NAM IN COLOR

ENDLESS A FABULOUS GUIDED TOUR IN PERSON WITH Recent On-the-scene Observations by: KENNETH S. ARMSTRONG

From coup to coup, ambush to ambush, crisis to crisis, a seemingly endless circle. Kenneth S. Armstrong sheds light on a colorful and vital area in crisis. During his three extensive assignments he spent many months in every corner of South Viet Nam. He has been up to the front lines in helicopters roaring over the death-filled rice paddies. He has met the Vietnamese people in cities and hamlets; interviewed their leaders; faced the crossbows of the primitive Montagnards; and experienced Communist gunfire. He brings the story behind the headlines. Only through deeper knowledge of the people, their history, religion and customs can one understand the events in this chaotic region. No other American lecturer has covered South Viet Nam so thoroughly. An authoritative, up-to-the-minute report.

tion protests the church's official practice restricting Negroes from its priesthood. The priesthood is tantamount to full fellowship for males. All over 12 years old may be admitted if they are in good standing. Driver said the resolution and another asking the church for a public statement of its civil rights position will be considered during the NAACP's national convention June 27-July 3 in Denver.

"The church's priesthood policy tends to make the Negro race look inferior," Driver said.

Stock Market Climbs To New Peaks

New York (U) — The stock market Wednesday pressed further into record high ground as volume swelled over the six-million-share level.

All the popular averages were in gear, posting historic peaks as strong demand for an assortment of blue chips pushed these indicators to fair gains.

It was by no means a runaway bull market. There were plenty of losers. Group action was spotty.

Perhaps the most impressive showings were made by the copper, which responded further to the latest price increase, and by chemicals, which rose as they attracted investment demand.

Of 1,253 issues, 541 rose and 484 fell. New highs for the year totaled 438 and new lows 42.

Volume, 6,100,000 shares compared with 5,760,000 Tuesday.

Eight of the 15 most active stocks advanced and five declined.

Prices were irregularly lower on the American Stock Exchange. Volume was 293 million shares compared with 2.14 million Tuesday.

Most Grains Are Steady To Weak

Chicago (U) — Speculators in the grain futures market showed signs for a while Wednesday of having started some commodities on a higher trend but they didn't buy convincingly enough and prices closed mostly steady to weak.

There were a few small gains, mostly in the expiring May delivery which dealers said could have been largely short covering.

All old crop soybean markets a firm range until the few minutes after the May contract under previous close. Soybeans finished with the extreme loss of 2 cents.

At the close, soybeans were 1/4 higher to 2 cents higher, wheat 1/4 higher to 1/2 cent higher, corn 1/4 higher to 1/2 cent higher, and oats 1/4 higher to 1/2 cent higher.

Unicam To Begin All-Day Sessions

The State Legislature will begin regular all-day sessions Monday.

At the suggestion of Legislative Speaker Kenneth Bowler of Red Cloud, lawmakers Wednesday agreed to meet from 8:00 a.m. to noon for the balance of the week to allow standing committees to complete most of their business in the afternoon.

All-day sessions will begin Monday, with sessions opening at 9:00 a.m.

Union Head Wants
Snoops Registered

Washington (UPI)—Joseph A. Beirne, president of the Communications Workers of America (CWA), said Wednesday the federal government should require registration of all eavesdropping and wiretapping equipment.

Users of such equipment also should be required to obtain a federal license from the Federal Communications Commission, Beirne contended in testimony before a subcommittee investigating government snooping. He was the

Education Fun
Said Advising,
Following Grads

Omaha (U)—The fun in higher education is in following and often advising in the careers of graduates. Dr. Royce H. Knapp told the Nebraska Bankers Association.

Dr. Knapp, University of Nebraska professor, spoke at the final session of the annual convention.

"We must try, I believe, to stress moral and ethical values," he said. "In a free society voluntary acts for the common good should come from all of us. This is the essential difference between our society and others."

first witness to recommend specific legislation to cope with abuses.

Beirne said his union represents workers who possess special skills that give them the insight of experts into technical and possibilities of electronic eavesdropping.

Such devices are a menace to the on-the-job dignity and the off-the-job privacy of all of us," he said. And he did not limit his warning to government snoopers.

Beirne told subcommittee members for example not to become too friendly with the clerk at the telephone company's business office.

"Typically, a small desk calendar will be the device which will hide a secret microphone capable of picking up every word you and the telephone company representative say to each other," he said. "If she's pretty, gentlemen, don't ask her for a date."

FCC Commissioner Lee Loewinger told the subcommittee the commission does not now have sufficient staff to adequately control abuses of laws and rules in connection with the use of electronic eavesdropping equipment.

The easiest approach to such control, he said, would be through restrictions on manufacture and sale.

NU STUDENTS CAST BALLOTS

Legwork Keeps
The Veins From 'Getting Rusty'

Philadelphia (UPI) — Dr. Paul Dudley White, Boston heart specialist, said Wednesday leg exercises keep the veins from getting rusty and help prevent sudden death from atherosclerosis.

Speaking at a dedication ceremony for Chamounix Manxion, a youth hostel in Fairmount Park, White said bicycling was one of the best ways to exercise the leg muscles.

He said the exercises also stimulate the brain.

"Leg exercise pumps blood to the entire body," White said. "If you stand still too long without moving, you can't think well."

Panel Passes
New Cabinet
Post Proposal

Washington (U)—The House Committee on Government Operations approved Wednesday a measure to set up a cabinet level Department of Housing and Urban Affairs.

The proposal has been backed by both President Johnson and the late John F. Kennedy.

The action came during a closed session of the committee but a source reported the vote for approval was 20 to 8.

Johnson, like Kennedy, has argued that a new department to work out solutions to the tangled problems of metropolitan areas is not only necessary but inevitable.

The proposal, however, has been caught up in political and sectional warfare and was defeated in the House in 1962.

But if Johnson presses the proposal this year, Democratic leaders figure they have big enough majorities to push it through.

AMA Uses 'Big Lie'

Des Moines (U)—The president of the American Chiropractic Association said the American Medical Association "has used the technique of the big lie in its recent attack on a respected member of the health profession."

PREXY INITIATED BY SOAKING

Ohio State University President Novice G. Fawcett knew he was going to be initiated into Bucket and Dipper, junior men's honorary society. What he didn't know was that the initiation involved a good soaking. Doing the honors here—while an amused bystander watches—is Tom Blackstone of Newark.

Ag Prices Increase Six Points

The mid-April Nebraska all farm commodity price index of 251 was up 6 points from a month earlier and 17 points above a year ago, according to a State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics report released Wednesday.

Higher prices for cattle, calves and the two principal feed grains contributed most to the increase.

Cattle prices continued upward to $21.10 per hundred weight, $1.30 above a month earlier and the highest since October of 1963.

The mid-April average price received by Nebraska farmers for wheat at $1.32 per bushel was down four cents from a month earlier and 60 cents less than a year ago.

Corn at $1.22 per bushel was up one cent from mid-March and 10 cents above a year ago.

Mrs. Johnson Training For Airline Post

Chicago (UPI) — Mrs. Nancy Johnson began job training this week to "prepare for a life without Fritz," the husband she lost in the "incredible" revelation that he really was another man with another wife.

Mrs. Johnson started an eight-day training course as an airline ticket agent. Her children, Krista, 4, and Johnny, 2, will stay with her parents here.

They then will return to their home in Omaha, Neb., where Mrs. Johnson will start her new job and await annulment of her marriage to John (Fritz) Johnson, an "upset and unhappy" man.

Three months ago, Johnson was recognized as Lawrence Bader, 38, Akron, Ohio, kitchenware salesman who vanished during a Lake Erie fishing trip in May, 1957, leaving a wife and four children.

Fingerprints confirmed the double identity. Psychiatric tests confirmed Johnson's claim that he had no recollection of his former life in Ohio. He had lived in Omaha since a few days after Bader's disappearance and married Mrs. Johnson three years ago.

Johnson adopted Krista, his wife's child by a previous marriage, and became a well known television sports-caster.

Now he lives in the Omaha YMCA, works as a bartender and visits the children of his second wife while trying to unravel the broken thread of his earlier life through psychiatric treatment.

"I have no idea what could have happened to a man as good and kind as Fritz," Mrs. Johnson said in an airport interview on her arrival.

"This isn't anyone's fault," she said. "It's out of our hands."

"I guess I have adjusted as well as I could. It hasn't been easy."

"Fritz comes to the house nearly every day to work in the yard and do things around the house."

"And to see the children. (They) love their Daddy very much."

Med Graduates To Hear Thomas

Omaha (AP)—Lowell Thomas will be the speaker at the University of Nebraska College of Medicine commencement June 13.

The university will confer an honorary doctor of laws on Thomas who is a world traveler, author and news commentator.

His father, Col. Harry George Thomas, received a medical degree from the University of Nebraska in 1896.
